FBI Nabs Four Klansmen In Civil Rights Murder

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson announced today that four Ku Klux members have been arrested in Alabama for conspiracy in the slaying of a Detroit mother of five after Thursday's mass civil rights march on Montgomery, Ala.

Johnson paid tribute to FBI agents for the arrests for what Johnson called the "horrible crime."

The federal charge was conspiracy to violate the civil rights of Mrs. Viola Gregg Liuzzo, 39, who was killed by a shot fired into her car after she had participated in the rights march.

Johnson went on television to make his announcement. With him were Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

Johnson identified the four arrested men as Eugene Thomas, 43, of Bessemer; William Orville Eaton, 41, also of Bessemer; Gary Thomas Rose, 31, of Birmingham; and Collier LeRoy Wilkins Jr., 21, of Fairfield, Ala.

Johnson said the four Klan members will be arraigned immediately and later stand trial.

He said the slain woman was murdered by the enemies of justice, who for decades have used "the rope and gun and tar and feathers" to terrorize their neighbors.

They struck by night as they usually do, he said because their purpose will not stand the light of day.

"I have fought them all my life," Johnson said "because their loyalty is not to the United States of America, but to a society of hooded bigots."

By ROSS HAGEN
LOWNDESBORO, Ala. (AP) — An attractive white Detroit mother who felt she had to help other people was shot to death while driving in a rural section near Lowndesboro, the third person to die by violence in the current civil rights campaign in Alabama.

Viola Gregg Liuzzo, 39, was driving to Montgomery from Selma Thursday night when a bullet smashed the window beside her and slammed into her neck. A second bullet hit the roof of the car.

Only a few hours earlier, Gov. George C. Wallace had said the fact that there were no incidents during the 50-mile march from Selma to Montgomery reflected credit on the state.

Moton said an auto pulled alongside about the time he heard something hit and then surged past. After their car stopped, Moton said, he ducked down in the seat when he saw the other auto turn around. A light flashed into their car and then the other auto raced away, he said.

Moton hitchhiked back to Selma and told his story to the march headquarters there. He was being held by Selma police as a material witness.

State and federal authorities began an immediate investigation. It was not determined if federal troops who guarded the marchers were still on the highway.

Negroes and whites when, a policeman said, "tempers got out of hand." A white youth identified as Joseph Huber, 17, was charged with Peterson's death.

2 Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee assailed President Johnson's voting rights bill as "heinous and oppressive" and designed deliberately to exclude Texas George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, told a House Judiciary subcommittee that "we want to protect, in every possible way, the right of every single adult American to vote in every election."

3 About 100 Negroes marched to the Parish (County) School Board office at Jonesboro, La., to press demands for changes at Negro Jackson High School. No incidents were reported. Pupils have been boycotting the school since March 8.

4 In Washington, President Johnson and members of his Cabinet urged that fair employment principles be applied in federal agencies throughout the country. The President said discrimination against Negroes is costing billions of dollars.

Lowndes County was one of the targets of the voter registration drive which started in Dallas County (Selma) in January. (Turn to Page A4, Column 8)

'I Feel Badly,' Wallace Says About Slaying

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace said today "I feel badly about anyone getting killed in this state" when he was asked about the shooting of a woman civil rights worker Thursday night in Lowndes County, Alabama.

He was referring to the shooting of Viola Gregg Liuzzo, 39, of Detroit, mother of five. She was killed by a bullet that smashed into the window of a car in which she was riding with a Negro youth.

Wallace, interviewed in Montgomery on a national television network program, NBC's "Today," said:

"I regret this incident but it still safer to ride the highways in this state than the subways in New York."

The governor also said "You can't blame any one individual" in Alabama for the incident any more than blame could be placed on one person for an attempted rape in Philadelphia or the slaying of Negro leader Malcolm X in New York.

"I think the people of our state, both Negro and white, were greatly restrained and I commend both races," Wallace said.

He said the civil rights leaders are not interested in changing the racial climate.

Wallace said: "I want to warn the American people that you're going to have these demonstrations in every state in the Union and these demonstrations will immobilize and paralyze this country."

The governor claimed that U.S. Dist. Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr., was used by the Justice Department in ordering the right to vote march on Montgomery.

"When we went into federal court his mind was already made up," he said of Johnson.

He said the demonstrations are not about the right to vote.

He said if every Negro in the state were registered "you would still have these demonstrations."

Wallace challenged the three major television networks to have J. Edgar Hoover, director (Turn to Page A4, Column 2)

The shooting occurred in a desolate section of Lowndes County on U.S. 80, which was the route of the five-day march.

Moton said he heard a sound like a rock hitting the door of the car and Mrs. Liuzzo slumped over. The car skidded out of control, toppled three posts of a barbed wire fence and came to a stop in a pasture.

But he told a news conference later "the fact that there were no incidents (during the march and rally) reflected credit on the state."

There were these other racial developments:

North Koreans Offer to Send Troops to Viet

By ROBERT LIU
TOKYO (AP) — Communist North Korea joined Peking today in offering to send men and arms to South Viet Nam if the Viet Cong ask for help.

The offer was made in a government statement broadcast by Pyongyang Radio. Peking made a similar offer Thursday.

North Korea said: "Under the condition in which the U.S. im-perialists are steadily expanding the war the Democratic People's Republic of Korea government will take measures for sending volunteers to South Viet Nam at any time the South Viet Nam National Liberation Front request.

"The peoples of all socialist countries can and must supply not only aid of all forms, including weapons, to the South Vietnamese people but also dispatch volunteers, if necessary."

Reds Not Yet Ready to Talk Peace, President Declares

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — At a moment of mounting crisis in the Vietnamese war, the United States made it known around the world today that President Johnson is, in his own words, "ready to go anywhere at any time and meet with anyone whenever there is promise of progress toward an honorable peace."

This presidential stand for negotiations "based on an end of Communist aggression" against South Viet Nam coincided with publication of an interview with Premier Chou En-lai of Communist China in which Chou accused the United States of expanding aggression in Viet Nam and predicted that China and the Soviet Union would close ranks in the face of any wider conflict.

Johnson said he has no evidence so far of Communist readiness to negotiate an acceptable settlement and added: "There may come a change — if we all remain united."

Chou asserted "the American government will never force the South Vietnamese people and the Democratic Republic of Viet Nam (North Viet Nam) into negotiations by intensifying the war."

The President's readiness to engage personally in peace talks if his conditions are met was declared in a statement made to a Cabinet meeting Thursday and subsequently made public. It is being circulated to American embassies abroad and broadcast around the world by the Voice of America.

The President spoke out after several days of growing tension here and abroad over the possibility that a much bigger conflict may develop in Southeast Asia.

Within the week warnings have come from both Peking and Moscow that Soviet and Chinese fighters may enter the war. U.S. officials are inclined to take these warnings seriously for the long run, although they think at the moment Moscow and Peking may be trying primarily to put pressure on the United States and on other countries to restrain the American war effort.

Widespread criticism has erupted against the United States also in the past few days for supplying nonlethal gas for use in some instances against Communist forces in South Viet Nam.

Mrs. Liuzzo 'Wanted to Do Things,' Children Explain

By KARL MANTYLA
DETROIT (AP) — "She died doing what she believed in and she believed in people, whether they were white, black, Jew or Gentile," said the husband of a Detroit white woman, slain Thursday in Alabama.

Anthony Liuzzo, 51, a Teamsters Union official, used the words to describe his wife, Viola Gregg Liuzzo, 39.

The mother of five was shot to death while driving from Selma to Montgomery. She was returning to the Alabama capital after taking a load of civil rights marchers back to Selma.

A stunned Liuzzo talked to reporters early today at the family's ranch-type home in Detroit.

"I sent her money to come home on," he said brokenly. "I sent $50 Sunday because she called from Selma Saturday night and said she'd be home right after the demonstration."

Liuzzo, a business agent for Teamsters Local 247, recalled his wife had phoned him March 16 from Detroit's Wayne State University where she was working on a bachelor's degree in sociology.

She told her husband she was going to Selma with "three or four people" from Wayne State.

Liuzzo tried to discourage her husband.

"She said: 'No, we've got to go,'" he related.

"When she called me Saturday night, she told me: 'We go on the march Sunday. I'll need some money to come home on right after the demonstration in Montgomery.'"

"That's when I sent the $50," Liuzzo said.

The four children of the Liuzzos who are living at home described their mother as an attractive red-haired woman full of life who wanted to do things.

They quoted her as saying once "there are too many people who just stand around talking."

"She wanted to act," said her husband.

A former medical technician, she was interested in creative writing and collected rocks and antiques. Mrs. Liuzzo had hoped to have her work published some day.

Liuzzo said he gave his wife a cabin near Grayling, in the central part of Lower Michigan at Christmas to help her in her writing efforts.

"She wanted a secluded place," he said. "I was having (Turn to Page A4, Column 4)

Moonlighters Work Harder, Survey Shows

By NEIL GILBRIDE
WASHINGTON (AP) — There are almost as many Americans with two jobs as there are with none, the Labor Department said today in a new study on moonlighting.

But if all the moonlighters quit their second job it would not significantly help the nation's approximately 4 million unemployed, the report said.

"This analysis indicates that multiple job holders generally are not depriving unemployed persons of employment opportunities," said the report by Harvey R. Hamel and Forrest A. Bogan of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

"Comparatively few jobless workers could or would take the secondary jobs held by dual job holders."

Nor, they said, does the evidence indicate there would be any big increase in moonlighting if the federal standard work week were cut from 40 to 35 hours as organized labor is urging Congress to do.

"Available information does not show that persons with shorter hours per week are necessarily more likely to be dual job holders than those working longer hours," said the report published in the monthly Labor Review.

"In fact, the dual job holding rate for persons who worked 41 hours a week or more was a little higher than for persons who worked 35 to 40 hours," it said.

The high rate of moonlighting among such public service employees as postal workers, firemen and policemen indicates the incidence of moonlighting has a lot to do with working schedules in the main job, the report added.

A policeman or fireman on a night shift can more easily arrange moonlighting (Turn to Page A4, Column 1)

Carson Man's Death to Be Investigated

A coroner's jury will be sworn in this afternoon to investigate the death Wednesday of a Ft. Carson soldier.

Officials said the jury would be impeached at the Swan Funeral Home. County Coroner Dr. Raul Ulrich will conduct the inquest which will probably be held at a later date.

Pfc. James Swinms, 34, died Wednesday night at Penrose Hospital.

Swinms had been forcibly ejected from the Metropole Cafe 113 E. Colorado Ave. Saturday night by the bartender. According to police reports, the man was pushed out of the cafe and apparently struck his head when he fell to the pavement.

He was taken to Ft. Carson Hospital and then transferred to Penrose. Cause of the death was not released.

The District Attorney's office said that it was not known if any charges would be pressed. This will be determined by the coroner's jury.

U.S. Bombers Strike Deep Into Red Viet Territory

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Navy jet bombers attacked four coastal radar stations in North Viet Nam today, one of them only 80 miles from Communist China's Hainan Island.

The raid was by far the deepest penetration into North Viet Nam of any of the 12 raids since Feb. 7.

Two Navy planes were shot down in the Gulf of Tonkin, but both pilots were rescued unhurt by helicopter.

A number of other planes were heavily damaged.

A U.S. Navy spokesman in Saigon declined to rule out the possibility they might have been attacked by enemy planes. No Communist planes have been reported sighted on any of the previous raids on North Viet Nam.

Two of the North Vietnamese radar stations were reported heavily damaged and two moderately damaged.

One of the targets was on Bach Long Island, in the Gulf of Tonkin 80 miles from Hainan. Chinese Mig jet interceptors are known to operate from an airbase on the big island.

The other three stations, all within 80 miles of the border between North and South Viet Nam, were at Ha Tinh, Cap Mui Ron and Vinh Son.

A propeller-driven A1E that participated in the raid was forced to crash land at Da Nang Air Base because the pilot could (Turn to Page A4, Column 5)

Ringleaders in AFA Cheating to Be Discharged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert has announced that two ringleaders in the Air Force Academy cheating incident will receive discharges under other than honorable conditions.

An Air Force statement Thursday did not identify the two, but said: "They were involved in stealing the examinations after illegal entry to an unauthorized area."

Zuckert also announced that he has accepted resignations from 105 cadets who admitted involvement in the episode, and that four others who knew of the cheating but didn't report it also had resigned.

Of those quitting the academy, Zuckert said 103 will enter the reserve to complete their military obligation, and that their chance to receive honorable discharges wouldn't be affected by the cheating.

Three other cadets who have no further service obligation will be honorably discharged and one other will return to the Army.

Snow Conditions Ideal For School Ski Carnival

Conditions should be just about ideal on Pikes Peak Saturday for the annual High School Ski Carnival.

Pikes Peak Highway Superintendent Jack Sullivan said the road from the toll gate to Milepost 11 below Glen Cove was in excellent condition. The toll gate opens at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Additionally, there has been 6 to 8 inches of new snow at the Pikes Peak ski area and elsewhere on city watersheds on Pikes Peak.

What's more, there shouldn't be much danger of frostbite since temperatures on the mountain have been considerably warmer during the past few days than in Colorado Springs.

Roy Knoll, South Slope watershed caretaker, said the temperature at Ruxton Park at 7 a.m. Friday was 22 degrees, with a low during the night of 9 above. High Thursday was 32 degrees.

First races in the Ski Carnival start at 11 a.m. and continue through most of the afternoon. Spectators are welcome.

CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON — President Johnson, just like the three Presidents who preceded him, has asked Congress to pass a home rule bill which would allow residents of the District of Columbia to govern themselves.

But neither LBJ, nor Kennedy, Eisenhower and Truman before him, has ever challenged Congress to face up to the gut issue involved in home rule. Yet everybody who amounts to beans in the federal bureaucracy knows that the real reason this Congress will not act on such legislation is a racial one.

It is all right for some smugly pious members of Congress to champion equal voting rights for Negroes in the Deep South. But on the essentially same issue of allowing them to help choose a mayor, dog catchers, etc., in the nation's capital, the hypocrisy bloc constitutes a majority of the House if not the Senate.

The fact is that 54 per cent of the capital's 800,000 residents are Negroes. On a voting age breakdown the distribution runs 52 per cent white, 48 per cent Negro.

It is because of the possibility that Negro bloc voting could theoretically give the district a Negro mayor and a predominantly a Negro city council, that Congress has displayed, year in and out, a consistent reluctance to approve a home rule bill.

This racial aspect of the home rule issue is usually avoided in Senate and House hearings on the legislation.

Witnesses in behalf of home rule are not supposed to mention this Negro problem. That unwritten rule of behavior was finally broken this year when a woman, Mrs. Patricia Roberts Harris, had the temerity to tell a Senate committee the unvarnished truth.

Man Will Face Second Trial For Killing

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — LeRoy Dunlap goes on trial today for a second time in the 1920 slaying of an Akron restaurant owner.

Dunlap, now 64 and a white-haired grandfather, escaped from the Summit County Jail here May 12, 1920, while being tried on a first degree murder charge in the holdup-killing of Steve Bossos.

Dunlap was convicted in absentia without a jury recommendation of mercy, which made the death penalty mandatory, but sentence never was passed formally because of his absence.

Last October Dunlap was arrested at a soldiers' home in Washington, D.C., where he had been living since his retirement from the Air Force in 1959.

Granting a defense motion for a new trial, Common Pleas Judge Stephen C. Colopy ruled in January that he could not sentence Dunlap to the electric chair on the first trial's verdict.

The judge said the stenographic testimony apparently was thrown out about 10 years ago and Dunlap would have no court record on which to appeal.

In addition to the absence of court records, most of the principals in the first trial have died.

Prosecutor James V. Barbuto said he "can't drop this matter" in announcing he would try Dunlap for murder a second time.

"A crime has been committed," Barbuto said. "I have to relate to the court what evidence I have."

Dunlap has waived a jury trial and a three-judge panel will decide his fate. The panel will include Common Pleas Judges John M. Kelly and William H. Victor of Summit County and Judge Robert E. Cook of Portage County.

After his escape Dunlap went under the name of Harry Walker. At one time he worked as a streetcar conductor in St. Louis, where he was married. He has a son and two grandchildren living in St. Louis.

Dunlap was one of five originally charged with murder in the Bossos slaying. Three of the others served prison terms, but later were freed. The fifth man broke jail with Dunlap and never was recaptured. He died in a fall from a water tower in Massillon, Ohio, in 1928.

AN AWKWARD SITUATION FOR CONGRESS

She simply stated that when fear of a Negro majority is the prime reason for Congressional denial of home rule "then home rule rises to the level of a civil rights reform and the nation should be made aware of that."

Consistency is not necessarily a jewel, but in the case of home rule for the District of Columbia, it is going to be unusually awkward for members of Congress this year to vote one way for Alabama Negroes, and the other — the segregationist — way for those who live in the shadow of the capitol dome.

It is pertinent to bring up this civil rights subject at this time, if for no other reason than that Congress has been running the District of Columbia since 1874, when it withdrew the local voting franchise.

And with what results? The nation's capital now has the stain of a high crime rate which grows worse, not better. And just today a national conference on the problem of combating obscenity labeled Washington, D. C. the "smut capital of the nation."

LBJ Orders U.S. Agencies to Halt Discrimination

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, confronted by a top official's report that federal offices in the South hire too few Negroes, has ordered a halt to any job discrimination in government agencies.

Johnson got the report Thursday at a Cabinet meeting from LeRoy Collins, former Democratic governor of Florida who now heads the Community Relations Service set up under the 1964 civil rights law.

Collins told Johnson that during a recent trouble-shooting mission to Selma, Ala., he saw indications that "the principles of fair employment and non-discrimination to which the federal government is strongly committed do not appear to be applied in the various federal agencies there."

Collins later told a news conference he was talking about the Social Security office, the post office, the agricultural services, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Justice Department and Selma's Craig Air Force Base.

Johnson responded by saying that in all government offices "there must be equal treatment, equal respect, equal service — and equal support — for all American citizens regardless of race or sex or region or religion."

The President said "regional custom, local tradition, personal prejudice or predilection are no excuses, no justification, no defense in this regard."

This was one of several Johnson statements distributed at the hour-long news conference which saw seven officials, including Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, report on the Cabinet meeting.

Some highlights: —Humphrey said he has set up a task force, headed by Collins, to make plans now to avoid summer race riots of the sort that broke out in a number of Northern cities in 1964.

—Gardner Ackley, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, estimated that racial discrimination is costing the economy $23 billion a year.

—James E. Webb, chief of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said television pictures from the Ranger 9 moon rocket gave "very strong assurance" that there are "two, maybe three places that we could land on the moon."

—Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor predicted a sharp reduction this year in the country's balance of payments deficit and said there apparently will be no need for legislative controls to back up the voluntary antideficit program which Johnson wants businessmen and bankers to observe. "Based upon the early results," Connor said, "we think the program adopted by the President will do the trick."

The news conference, the first of its kind but perhaps the forerunner of others like it, was held without advance notice. Only 15 or 20 reporters were on hand.

range a second job during the day than someone whose main job is in normal daytime hours.

The report, based on a 1964 survey, showed a total of 3.7 million persons with more than one job, a decline of about 200,000 from 1963.

Many of the moonlighters work at a second job they created themselves and this, the report said, is a major reason dual job holding has little effect on unemployment.

"Nearly one-third of the secondary jobs are filled by self-employed persons who created them for their own economic advancement. Relatively few unemployed persons have the required ability, experience and inclination to step into these jobs, to say nothing of the financial resource frequently necessary," the report said.

"Furthermore, unemployed persons primarily seek full-time jobs but the average dual job holder worked only about 13 hours at his second job," it added.

of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, appear and give the records of the civil rights leaders involved in the voter campaign.

He said the Justice Department in Washington dictated a federal court order handed down by Johnson. "I have never defied a single court order, yet Martin Luther King Jr. has said he would not obey an unjust order of any court, federal or state."

Wallace repeated an earlier claim that many of the persons who came to Alabama and led the demonstrations belonged to Communist front organizations.

The governor was asked if he would receive a petition that Negro leaders attempted to present to him Thursday after ceremonies winding up the 50-mile march from Selma. The Negro leaders were first turned away by massed state troopers on the Capitol steps. Later they declined to hand it to an aide to the governor after they gained admittance to the building.

"I will keep my word that I will meet with any representative group of the citizens of this state," Wallace said.

But he charged that many of the Negro leaders who came to present the petition were not residents of Alabama and that some had criminal records.

Wallace said much has been made of the fact that the state flag and Confederate flag flew atop the state Capitol while the American flag was not immediately seen.

He said the American flag has flown where it is — over a wing of the building — since 1914.

Two men were being held by police today after they were apprehended fleeing the scene of a burglary early this morning, police reported.

The Kenlore Company, 117 E. Colorado Ave., was burglarized Thursday of several articles of jewelry, two watches, and a tray of silver charm trinkets. No estimate was made as to the value of the stolen goods, since it could not be definitely determined exactly what was taken, according to the report.

An employee of George's Pizzeria, 121 E. Colorado Ave., called police at 1:59 a.m. this morning and said the Kenlore Company was being robbed. When police arrived on the scene a few moments later, the two men who had been seen at the front of the store had fled.

Sgt. Thomas Hughes, taking directions from a bystander, gave chase to the two parties, and one was apprehended by officers Donald Watts and William Sutton. The other was apprehended by Sgt. Hughes in the basement of the Alamo Hotel.

The parties were brought to headquarters, where they both maintained that the window of the Kenlore Company was broken when they came by, according to the report. They said just as they began taking things out of the window, someone came up and told them to stop it and they fled. Soon after they were apprehended.

Police said both parties were carrying several articles stolen from the window of the Company, when they were apprehended.

The two men being held were identified as Melvin L. Coffey, 42, 111 E. Cucharas St., and Mays Thomas, 23, believed to be living at the Acacia Hotel.

lights and other facilities put in it while she was away. I wanted to surprise her when I got her up there.

"But she said she had to go down South because it is everybody's fight. She felt she had to help. She felt she had a place in it," he added.

Liuzzo said the family learned of their mother's death through a phone call from a Selma minister.

Liuzzo remembered shouting in shock: "Penny, Penny, they shot mommy."

"He woke me up, and I thought it was a nightmare," said Thomas, 13.

Liuzzo added: "I bought three suits not too long ago and never wore the third one. And that one was black."

"Isn't that odd isn't that odd?" he reflected, repeating himself.

While the Liuzzos were talking to reporters, Sally, 6, stood by her father.

"Why couldn't she just die from being old?" she asked.

Her father gave no answer.

The oldest daughter, Penny, 18, added, "She was a good woman, a good mother."

Penny said her mother had attended some meetings of the Congress on Racial Equality, but was not a member of CORE.

Liuzzo said his wife was born in California, Pa. and that she received a certificate as a medical technologist from Carnegie Institute of Technology in Detroit in 1961. In 1962, she began her work at Wayne State.

The couple had been married 16 years.

In addition to Sally, Penny and Thomas, Anthony Jr., 10, lives at home. Another daughter, Mary, 17, is married and lives in Ringgold, Ga. Penny and Mary are daughters by a previous marriage of Mrs. Liuzzo.

The dead woman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Heber Gregg, live in Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

Indications were that the Navy planes had met heavy resistance, either from flak or enemy planes.

The U.S. spokesman declined to say how many planes had participated. He said more than 40 planes from the carriers Hancock and Coral Sea had flown the strike itself, but additional planes had flown on flak suppression missions.

In the past, flak suppression lanes generally outnumbered the strike planes.

Also planes on interception duty were in the air.

The spokesman said high explosive bombs ranging in size from 250 to 1,000 pounds were used.

He said this raid, along with three earlier raids against enemy radar stations, "undoubtedly has degraded the enemy early warning system." He declined to speculate how badly the enemy radar network had been damaged, however.

Viet Cong patrols fired probing shots into the vital mountain outpost of Kannak early today, but broke off the attack before inflicting any casualties.

Kannak, one of three posts defending Route 19, the only overland route across the central highlands, was besieged by powerful Viet Cong forces three weeks ago. The Viet Cong were beaten off and more than 100 were killed.

Artillery boomed over Saigon Thursday night for the fourth night in a row as big guns pounded at areas in the outskirts where a Viet Cong buildup was suspected.

Military officials said the gunners were laying down preventive barrages.

There have been reports lately of large Viet Cong units heavily equipped with mortars moving into districts adjacent to the capital. There have been no major actions in the area, but military officials have been expecting some form of Communist reaction to the U.S. and Vietnamese air strikes at North Viet Nam.

Killer Lives Five Years In Death Cell

CHICAGO (AP) — "Waiting to be executed is something you learn to live with," the condemned killer said dispassionately.

William C. Witherspoon, 41, has been living a switch throw from death in the electric chair for almost five years in Cook County jail.

He was convicted April 22, 1960, of fatally shooting a policeman trying to arrest him in connection with several jewel thefts. Since then, Witherspoon has had eight stays of execution.

He recalled Thursday in an interview how an administrative failing once made him lose all hope.

"A clerk of the court mislaid an order to stay my execution," he said, "and I thought that was it. Not until a week later did I learn I had been given 90 days more to make a new appeal."

A bill to abolish capital punishment is pending in the Illinois legislature and it has the support of Witherspoon's warden, Jack Johnson. But since it is not retroactive, it cannot save Witherspoon. He feels that its passage would prompt executive clemency.

A native of Detroit, Witherspoon spent four years in the Navy submarine service during World War II.

"The first two or three times my execution date neared," said Witherspoon, "I couldn't sleep. I kept waiting for that last-minute stay. It was like the first couple of times I went down in a submarine. I was worried."

"But I got used to it," said the gaunt convict. "Now I just go to sleep, and if the stay doesn't come, they can wake me up."

Witherspoon maintains that his gun discharged accidentally and killed Chicago policeman Mitchell Stone April 25, 1959. He pleaded innocent at his trial, and still maintains his innocence.

His most recent execution date, March 19, was stayed by an appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court asking for time to file motions with an appellate court.

He counts among his friends novelists Nelson Algren and Henry Miller. Witherspoon wages a constant campaign against capital punishment with royalties earned from his own writings.

"If I can't help myself," he said, "maybe I can help some other guy so he won't have to sit and wait to be killed."

Witherspoon argues: "If it makes sense to kill a guy because he killed someone else then if a guy rapes somebody's sister, why don't we rape his sister? And if he burns down a house, why don't we burn his house down?"

Dean's List at CU

Lists Canon Students

Five Canon City students were reported in the superior category of the dean's list of the University of Colorado's College of Arts and Science for the fall semester.

Students on the superior list have earned grades averaging at least midway between "B" and "A."

The students were Miss Alma Diana Grabow, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. C. Grabow, Miss Lavonna B. Hedleson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Hedleson, Gary R. Shook, son of Mr. W. Shook, Paul R. Sparks, son of the Rev. and Mrs. L. R. Sparks, and James A. Valent, son of John Valent.

Canon City Women to Attend Library Meet

Mrs. J. C. Hurliman, chairman of the Canon City Library Board, and Mrs. James Bruner, secretary of the board, will attend a public library trustee workshop to be held in Pueblo, Saturday and Sunday at the Continental Motel.

The workshop is one of nine scheduled throughout the state, sponsored by the State of Colorado Department of Education, Office of the State Library.

Mrs. Raymond Young, past president, American Library Trustees Association, will serve as director for the workshops. Library trustees from Colorado and members of the State Library staff will assist her with the program.

$1,094 SHAVING MUG

LONDON (AP) A large shaving mug of 1706 sold at a Sotheby's auction recently for 690 pounds ($1,904).

The bowl, an unusual Lambeth pottery one, was painted with a surgeon barber about to lead his horse into a stable. It was dated 1706, when barbers did minor surgery.

City to Open Bids on Hot Water Heating

Bids will be opened at 2 p.m. April 9 at the city purchasing office for installation of a hot water heating system at 224 Mesa Rd.

The system will be put into a house near the greenhouse operated by the City Park and Recreation Department, according to Gene German, park superintendent.

He said one of the present forestry division employees will live in the house and will serve as a caretaker for the greenhouse, plus taking care of other duties there.

Specifications and bid forms are available at Wayne Jackson's office, 404 W. Fontanero St. He is the city purchasing officer.

Jewish Leaders Cold to German Nazi Hunt Plan

By CARL HARTMAN

BONN, Germany (AP) — Jewish leaders reacted coldly today to West Germany's new war crimes legislation, contending that the bill extending the statute of limitations for Nazi murderers by five years does not go far enough.

Rabbi Joachim Prinz, president of the American Jewish Congress, told an audience of Berlin Jews that public opinion will be sharply critical of the action taken Thursday by the West German Bundestag.

The German-born rabbi, who now lives in Newark, N.J., said the proposed law is "not sufficient."

In Jerusalem, Dr. Aryeh Kubov, executive committee chairman of "Yad Vashem" — the Heroes and Martyrs Remembrance Authority — said the legislation is "unwise, solves nothing and will serve to justify the widespread feeling of mistrust regarding the German Federal Republic."

"It is now clear that the Bundestag acted too late and too little," Kubov said in a radio speech.

"As far as our future course of action is concerned, we will have to consult with resistance movements and authoritative juridical bodies with which we have cooperated until now."

But an internationally known expert on Nazi crimes against humanity commended the Bonn vote as a "practical solution."

Professor Robert M. W. Kempner, former U.S. deputy chief prosecutor at the Nuremberg war crimes tribunal, told reporters in Frankfurt he felt the five-year extension was better than a longer one.

It makes sense, he said, that there will be no relenting in the hunt for war criminals and that special investigative staffs will be maintained at their present size.

The Bundestag approved the extension bill by a vote of 344-9 with 4 abstentions. The Bundestag, Parliament's upper house, is expected to add its approval April 9. Before the Bundestag session, political leaders of both major parties rejected a proposal to extend the statute of limitations 10 years.

Justice Minister Ewald Bucher resigned in protest against the Bundestag action, contending that any change in the statute's deadline, originally set for this year, violated the constitution.

Bucher's Free Democratic party, the minor partner in the government coalition, was the only group to oppose the bill as a bloc. The Social Democrats voted for it and Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's Christian Democrats were split.

Bucher's objection was based on the constitutional provision that no one can be punished for an act that was not punishable at the time it was committed.

Under a law that dates back to the German Criminal Code of 1871, no one can be prosecuted for a murder more than 20 years after it was committed.

During the allied occupation, it was decided that for purposes of this law the 20 years should run from May 8, 1945, the day after the Nazi surrender. The argument was that it was not possible to start prosecution of Nazi crimes until that date.

This provision was taken over by the West German government when it became sovereign. The bill passed Thursday carried the argument a step further, by assuming that the West German government was not fully free to seek out the evidence until the end of 1949, when most occupation controls ended.

Chancellor Erhard conferred with his top political advisers today on Bucher's resignation.

Civil Rights Woman Slain In Alabama

Later the drive spread into other counties of Alabama's strip of rich, dark soil which runs diagonally through the southern and central portions of the state.

The county, with a population of about 15,000, has four Negroes to every white resident, but only two Negroes are registered to vote. There are about 2,400 white voters.

Lowndesboro is about halfway between Selma and Montgomery. The voting rights marchers spent Tuesday night near the town.

The car Mrs. Liuzzo was driving was about two miles from the nearest habitation and three miles west of Lowndesboro when the bullet ended forever her efforts to help others. She had been driving demonstrators along the march route for three days.

Her husband, Anthony, said in Detroit, "She died doing what she believed in and she believed in people, whether they were white, black, Jew or Gentile."

Liuzzo 51, a business agent for Teamsters Local 247, said he tried to discourage her from going to Selma when she telephoned March 16 from Detroit's Wayne State University where she was studying sociology. She wanted to go with three or four people from Wayne State.

When he asked her not to go, he said she told him, "We've got to go."

The Liuzzos have four children living at home. A daughter, Mrs. Barry Johnson, 17, has a home at Ringgold, Ga., and Mrs. Liuzzo's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Heber Gregg, live in Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

John Lewis, head of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, called Mrs. Liuzzo's death "senseless murder."

He said in a statement that such "acts of terror will continue until the federal government posts soldiers on every street corner in every Alabama town or until there are federally controlled free elections in Alabama."

"We will continue to organize in every Alabama town, if we must," he said, "until every Alabama Negro can register to vote."

Lewis took part in the march from Selma to Montgomery and spoke at the rally in front of the Alabama Capitol on completion of the pilgrimage.

Mrs. Arlie Robinson

Died Here Thursday

Mrs. Arlie Ann Robinson of Peyton died Thursday in a local hospital after a sudden illness. She was 82.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Monday in the Swan Funeral Home with the Rev. Dr. Walter G. Schaefer in charge. Mrs. Robinson will be buried in Peyton.

She was born Dec. 13, 1882, in Gower, Mo., and had been a resident of Peyton since childhood. She and her late husband, Thomas Robinson who died in 1929, homesteaded in the Peyton Community.

Mrs. Robinson attended school in Peyton and later taught school in that community.

She was a member of the Ladies Guild of Peyton and belonged to the Evangelical United Brethren faith.

Mrs. Robinson is survived by her sister Mrs. Fred Johnson of Denver and several nieces and nephews.

Boy Shoots Self In Hand Thursday

Stephen Eric Brock, 15, of 2424 Wheeler St., accidentally shot himself in the left hand Thursday, the sheriff's office reported.

According to Deputy Sheriff Charles White, a dog had been killing Mrs. Brock's chickens & the youngster took his father's .25 - caliber automatic to kill or frighten the dog away.

The dog did not appear and sometime later, while the youngster was unloading the weapon, it discharged and a bullet struck him in the hand.

Mrs. Alma Corporan

Survived by Sisters

The obituary for Mrs. Alma Corporan, former Colorado Springs resident who died Tuesday in a Tucson, Ariz., medical clinic, did not include the names of two of Mrs. Corporan's sisters.

Bertha Pullen and Ruth Mickle, both of Colorado Springs, were not included among the survivors in the story which appeared in Thursday's Gazette Telegraph.

Astronauts Show Wit and Charm In Storytelling

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)

— The two astronauts of the Molly Brown — so sparing of words in space — told the nation their story with wit and charm.

Perhaps the junior pilot, John W. Young, said it best when he was asked if the three orbits around the earth had made him more talkative.

He answered: "I think zero G (weightlessness) would make an extrovert of anybody."

His dead pan humor and command pilot Virgil I. Grissom's beaming face and crisp narration Thursday spiced their first news conference since they returned from a space flight of nearly five hours last Tuesday.

Both men had high praise for the spacecraft they named the Molly Brown. And they emphasized, too, that they felt maneuvering the Molly Brown

The monthly Girl Scout Leaders meeting was held Thursday, March 18, at the home of Ruth Hendricks. Bobby Brannan was co-hostess. Report of the Annual Cookie Sale held in February was given. The Girl Scouts and their leaders would like to thank all those in the community who helped support the cookie sale.

Mrs. Joe Brannan attended the Civil Engineer's Wives of ADC luncheon and style show held at the Colorado Springs Country Club Thursday March 18. Models were members of the club with fashions from the Mademoiselle Down Town Shop. A spring theme was carried out in colors of red and white in the table decorations.

Mrs. Jean Davenport, a former forester, now residing near Woodland Park, visited friends in the Forest on Wednesday.

A Splash Party for Black Forest Junior and Cadette Girl Scouts will be held at the community pool at the Air Force Academy April 9. Girls are to meet at the church at 6:45 p.m. Please advise your leader if you want to attend.

A planning meeting for the Cub Scout Pack was held at the home of Mrs. Rosemary Clark March 16. Plans for the Scout-O-Rama were discussed. Cubs of Pack 70 are to rehearse for the Grand Entrance on Saturday, April 3, at 1 p.m., at the City Auditorium. They will participate in the Grand March on Saturday, April 10. Cubs should be there no later than 7:30 p.m. on this date. Den Mothers Mary Metcalf and Pat Johnson will be in charge of decorating the booth for the Scout-O-Rama. Helpers are needed to build the booth. Contact Larry Clark if you can help in this project. The booth will display handicraft items the Cubs have made.

Each Cub will be asked to bring an item he has made to display in the booth. Cubs wanting to sell tickets for the Scout-O-Rama should contact their den mother.

Cub Scout Pack No. 70 will hold their Pack meeting March 26, at 7:30 p.m., at Hardesty Hall.

Junior Girl Scout Troop No. 350 held a Court of Awards Tuesday, March 16. The following badges were awarded:

Pen Pal Badge to Kate Watson; Home Health and Safety Badge to Irene Reeves; Collector to Kendra Johnson; Cook Badge to Candy Polhemus; My Home Badge to Debra Fultz; Pets Badge to Kendra Johnson; Dabbler Badge to Vikki Clarke and Enid Bittner; Housekeeper Badge to Irene Reeves; Debra Fultz and Melanie Smith; Troop Dramatics Badge to Dale Havice, Jan Rowland, Enid Bittner, Patti Hollenbaugh, Delinda Alkire, Mollie Luce, Crista Sanchez, Irene Reeves, Kate Watson and Leslie Scott; Weaving and Basketry Badge to Carol Landry, Joan Bogue, Kathy Brannan, Donna Kibler, Melanie Smith, Leanne Brannan, Vikki Clarke, Debra Fultz, Candy Polhemus and Kendra Johnson; Sign of the Arrow to Kate Watson, Vikki Clarke, Leanne Brannan, Leslie Scott and Kendra Johnson; Sign of the Star to Kate Watson.

The World Association Pin was awarded to Dale Havice, Candy Polhemus, Irene Reeves, Jan Rowland and Carol Landry. Special events mother for the troop, Mrs. Fred Kibler, provided refreshments for the meeting. Leaders for the troop Mrs. Robert Reeves.

The Community Club hosted a potluck supper for the community Friday, March 19. John Walls, vice-president, presided at the business meeting. Movies of the Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo Parade of 1964 were shown. Pictures of past Black Forest Festivals were also shown.

A meeting of chairmen and representatives of the various social and service clubs of the forest was held at Community Hall Monday, March 15. Purpose of the meeting was to hear reports and plans for the annual Black Forest Festival, to be held June 12 and 13. For information regarding the festival call Community Club president, Phil Hendricks, 495-2877. Sounds like a most exciting event is in the planning for the Forest.

Mrs. Shirlee Smith was honored on her birthday, March 15, by a surprise party given her by neighbors. Those honoring Shirlee were: Mary Metcalf, Marge Stabler, Rowena Bogue, Dott Ford, Mary Lou Montague, Velma Rice and Bobby Brannan. Another birthday surprise for Shirlee was, being presented a beautifully decorated cake by Judy Ingersoll.

Several foresters are known to be on the sick list this week. Your correspondent, Marlene Murphy, has been confined to St. Francis Hospital this week, after undergoing surgery on the 19th. Phyllis Johnson underwent dental surgery on the 22nd.

All 4-H members remember that there will be a Pals of the Pines meeting Friday, April 2, at the Community Hall, at 7:30 p.m.

The bi-monthly business meeting of Explorer Post 70 was held March 16 at the James Hidy home. Marion Ingersoll showed slides of the Post's deer hunt. Sunday afternoon the boys met at the home of Joe Brannan to work on packframes. The post is planning a 20 mile hike for this weekend.

The members of Our Lady of the Pines Guild and their guests enjoyed their annual St. Patrick's dinner, which was held in Hardesty Hall. Two very interesting and beautiful films of Ireland were shown by Father Quinn, missionary for the Columbian Fathers, as well as a film on Korea, which gave a background for the introduction of a most honored and distinguished guest. The Most Rev. Thomas Quinlan, Bishop of Chunchon, Korea, and the acknowledged hero of the 1950 "death march" in Korea.

Other honored guests of the Guild who were introduced by the Rev. John Wood, who has celebrated Masses in the Black Forest and is chaplain of St. Francis Hospital, were: Rev. James O'Reilly and Rev. Maurice Quinn, of the Columbian Fathers; Rev. Nick Natelli, pastor of the Black Forest Community Church, and Mrs. Natelli. Chaplain James R. Woodruff of the United States Air Force Academy, and Col. and Mrs. George Fagan of the United States Air Force Academy. Father Wood thanked the general chairman, Mrs. George E. Smith, and her committee chairmen: James Hawkins; Decorations, Mrs. Charles Rogers and Mrs. J. Scott; Invitations and Name Tags, Miss Coleen Hawkins and Mrs. C. Burk. He went on to thank Col. Charles Eashart, president of the Guild, and all those present for a most enjoyable evening.

Mrs. George Smith, who served as General Chairman, gave as a personal thank-you to each of her chairman, a green carnation corsage.

The Hall took on the effect of a bit of the Emerald Isle, under the hands of a very capable decorations committee. The tables were decorated with white carnations, tinged with green, and white and green tapers in holders, tied with bows of green ribbon. Shamrocks adorned the hall, and a very clever "Le-prechaun tree" grew on the table which held the desserts. "Wee men" peeked out between its shamrock leaves.

Mrs. Charles Earhart was in charge of the punch table, with crystal bowls set on Irish lace on a green cloth.

The menu consisted of corned beef and cabbage and a variety of other main dishes, salads, homemade bread and butter, desserts, with punch, tea, milk and coffee.

The handmade invitations that were sent out were designed by Miss Coleen Hawkins.

Miss Beverly Earhart and Miss Mary Kay James were in charge of the guest book, and upon arrival each person received an Irish hat or shamrock name tag, as they registered.

Miss Mary Beth French and Tom Rogers had charge of the entertainment for the younger set.

An evening of delightful entertainment and surprises was in store for those who attended Airman I.C. James Davidson, of the United States Air Force Academy, added to the atmosphere of the evening with his musical artistry on the bagpipes. Surprised by a rendition of Happy Birthday were Shirlee Smith, Maureen Earhart and Pat Chartier, who were celebrating their birthdays.

Dawn Bennett and Sgt. Allan Lobdell and Geraldine Bennett and Sgt. Ralph Suttles exchanged nuptial vows Mar. 20 at the Black Forest Community Church in a double wedding ceremony.

The vows were repeated before an altar decorated with white carnations and white tapers. Rev. Nick Natelli officiated, with traditional wedding music played by Mrs. Mary Genuci.

The brides are daughters of Mrs. Mabel Bennett of Black Forest. Sgt. Lobdell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Delbart Lobdell of Davenport, Iowa. Sgt. Suttles is the son of the late Carl Suttles and Mrs. Estelle Smith of McDonough, Ga. Both bridegrooms are in the United States Army and are stationed at Ft. Carson.

Given in marriage by their brother, Tyrone Bennett, both brides wore floor length white brocade gowns and shoulder length white brocade veils. They carried bouquets of white carnations and red baby roses on a white Bible.

Carolyn Carlson and Margie Carlson, the bridesmaids, wore pastel green dresses and carried white carnation and red rose bouquets. Rod Carlson and Sammy Turner served as the best men.

The brides' sister-in-law, Mrs. Tyrone Hoffman, and their sister, Mrs. Lee Hoffman, presided at the Guest Book. A reception immediately following the ceremony was held at the Chateau Restaurant in Black Forest. The brides mother presided at the refreshment table. The mothers wore white carnation corsages.

Out of town guests at the wedding were: Mrs. Delbart Lobdell, Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Lobdell, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Krieger all from Davenport, Iowa; and Mr. and Mrs. Tyrone Bennet from Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Both couples will reside in the Forest.

Deaths

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dr. Wolfgang B. Klempner, 72, pioneer aviation and space scientist, died Thursday of virus pneumonia.

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice Adm. Calvin T. Durgin, 72 (ret.) of Dogue, Va., collapsed and died Thursday night while watching a performance of "Tosca" at the Metropolitan Opera House.

WOLF AND EAGLE RETURN ROME (AP) — Rome's big blizzard this winter brought the two symbols of ancient Rome—the wolf and the eagle—back to the city. Watchmen in the outskirts of the city reported seeing wolves driven in from the hills by hunger. In another section of Rome a man shot down an eagle with a seven-foot wing-spread driven in by lack of food.

Voting Is Not 'Game,' Federal Judge Says

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A federal district judge says "the right to vote should not be regarded as a game being played by blacks versus whites, and should not be judged by the court in such respect."

Judge Harold Cox made the statement Thursday in refusing a federal injunction against the Madison County voter registrar, L. F. Campbell.

Cox, however, listed procedures for Campbell to follow in testing Negro voter applicants. The Justice Department presented evidence in the case based largely on "surmises, conjectures, suspicions and the like," said Cox.

Evidence of this type, "no matter how strong, can not be accepted as evidence of anything and it actually proves nothing," he added.

Cox said evidence showed

WOMEN PRIESTS?
ROME (AP) — A petition urges the Vatican to allow the ordination of women as Roman Catholic priests.
The appeal, from an international Catholic women's group, St. Joans' International Alliance, was presented to a papal commission designated for the revision of canon law.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Parents, please read Terry's confession. Then you will realize the unfair emotional load which you quarreling mates impose upon your children. If you really wish to do so, you can regain happiness without using even 50 per cent of your I. Q. for there is a very simple formula for marital happiness.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE V-46: Terry L., aged 11, was a problem child.
"Dr. Crane," his worried mother began, "I am quite concerned about Terry."
"He seems to be withdrawing from social life and is avoiding his former playmates."

"For example, they have often invited him to spend the night at their homes."

"But Terry always refuses and sometimes he has fabricated very bizarre stories to justify why he can't accept their invitations."

"Although I scold him and tell him it is quite O. K. for him to visit his pals for a night, he still will not do so."

"Dr. Crane, what is wrong with Terry? Am I at fault of what?"

"When I had a talk with Terry, he soon laid the cards on the table."

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I don't mind visiting my pals in the afternoon but I don't dare spend the night with them."

"For then they'd expect me to invite them to visit at my house for a night."

"But I can't do that."

"Since Terry's mother was hospitable and would have welcomed the other boys into her home over night, I asked Terry to explain just why he dared not invite them."

"Well, Dr. Crane," he finally confessed, "I like to have them visit our home in the afternoon or even for awhile in the evening."

Special Elections Asked by Civil Rights Groups

By JOHN BECKLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special elections to go with any new voting rights law are a growing demand of Negro civil rights groups.

They are asking Congress to include in the administration voting bill a provision for elections within six to nine months after enactment, so Negroes will have a chance to exercise their new power at the polls.

Rep. Adam C. Powell, D-N.Y., was the first to make such a request at hearings before a House Judiciary subcommittee earlier in the week and Thursday night three more witnesses urged a similar amendment.

One of them, Ralph Featherstone, representing the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, said a requirement for special elections within six to nine months after enactment of any voting law is necessary to prevent terror and intimidation on a scale yet unseen in the civil rights movement.

"This bill, in effect, leaves violence and intimidation as the only out for those who would prevent Negro voting," said Featherstone, who was clad in blue overalls.

In much of the South, he said, state and local elections will not be held until two to four years after the passage of any voting bill. Until local and state officials more responsive to Negro demands are elected, he said, Negroes will continue to suffer discrimination no matter what laws are passed.

Lumbering Along

... Since 1872

• Barely a year after the first stake was driven to lay out the town of Colorado Springs . . . Newtons was founded! Log cabins were in style . . . outdoor plumbing was socially correct and insulation was achieved by stuffing old rags between the logs. But the men of those days were a hardy lot and what they lacked in modern conveniences was overcome by vision and determination to succeed. Such a man was George Newton who founded the Newton Lumber Company.

• So you see from a very modest beginning (when Colorado Springs was in its infancy) Newtons and Colorado Springs have grown up together. We've been through two rather disastrous fires together . . . we've enjoyed all the romance of the Gold Rush days together . . . Cripple Creek and Victor provided the greatest gold rush this nation has ever known . . . and Newtons were right in the middle of it . . . supplying the vast quantities of lumber that were needed in those hectic days.

• During good times and bad . . . romantic eras and ruinous fires . . . the steady growth and progress of Colorado Springs and Newtons have been very closely associated. Like the strong, sturdy trees with which Newtons is so familiar . . . Colorado Springs and Newtons too, have grown to full maturity and usefulness these past 93 years.

Young Senators Plunge in as State Defenders

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

LOS ANGELES — The day of the shrinking violet freshman U.S. senator is apparently over. Democrat Bobby Kennedy of New York hardly waited to be seated before issuing a broadside calling for the inclusion of a few New York hill counties in the Appalachia program. This piece of contentiousness annoyed Republican Governor Rockefeller, but it marked Bobby down as a real defender of his state.

The same pattern has been followed by the new Republican Senator George Murphy of California. He plunged into congressional battle with a serious and devastating maiden speech which should have curled the hair of Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz for depriving California farmers of their traditional source of labor, the so-called braceros from neighboring Mexico. This piece of contentiousness annoyed Democratic Governor Pat Brown, but it marked George Murphy down as a real defender of his state.

The Murphy speech has great local significance for California, Arizona, Florida, and other states that have depended on seasonal importation of foreign labor to harvest such perishable and unsubsidized crops as oranges, lemons, dates, lettuce, and tomatoes, all of which require special handling.

But beyond the significance to agriculture Senator Murphy's speech constituted an attack on the whole idea of trying to solve any and all national problems along preconceived ideological lines.

The banishment of the braceros and Caribbean workers proceeded from the abstract desire to make jobs for unemployed U.S. citizens. In California it seemed just a matter of getting some of the 400,000 local unemployed out on the land.

As things turned out however, the pieces of the puzzle didn't match when the ideologues tried to put them together. At Tulare in the San Joaquin Valley a year of recruitment did turn up enough domestic citizen workers to end dependence on the braceros for harvesting the citrus crop. But in Ventura County, close to the metropolitan beguilements of Los Angeles, it has proved extremely difficult to hold native workers. The result is that Ventura has been lagging way behind on harvesting its lemon crop.

Around Palm Desert in the Coachella Valley there is a desperate need both for date harvesters and experts in date palm pollination. Some city-bred workers were recruited for date palm work, and they quit after a single day. When Governor Pat Brown visited Coachella he discovered the reason: date palm harvesting and hand pollination take place fifty feet from the ground. The worker has to be an adept at climbing ladders and working at a dizzy height in a bosun's chair. Watching it, Governor Brown said in his delightful way that it made him feel more insecure than usual. He is now taking Senator Murphy's side of the argument.

The ironies attendant upon the whole fight against knee-jerk liberalism to save California agriculture are almost too numerous to mention. By banishing

One-Legged Man Walks Most of 50 Miles

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)

— A one-legged white man covered the 50 miles from Selma to Montgomery with the civil rights marchers.

Jim Leather of Saginaw, Mich., said he made the pilgrimage because he wanted to help the Negroes in Alabama and everywhere in the nation.

He walked most of the way, breaking the journey with occasional rides in a car. On several occasions he moved along with the leaders.

When the marchers rested he stretched out on the grass. On these occasions nurses from the march medical corps rubbed his shoulders with alcohol and doctored his blistered foot.

He told other marchers the blisters on his foot were his major problem.

Leather told friends he was born with two legs, but because of a birth defect one was removed while he was a child.

Philip Crosby Plans On Another Divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After a marriage of seven months, Philip Crosby, son of singer Bing Crosby, and his wife are planning to divorce.

Crosby, 30, said Thursday: "I expect my wife to file suit for divorce in the near future." An attorney said Crosby and the former Mary Joyce Gabbard, are trying to arrange an amicable property settlement.

Crosby, one of four brothers who appeared in a singing group a few years ago, was formerly married to Sandra Drummond, a Las Vegas showgirl. They were divorced in 1963.

REASSEMBLING PROJECT
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — A Chattanooga man is offering a $25 reward for information concerning the person who is stealing his car bit by bit.

Charles Satterfield says the 1951 auto has been parked in his garage since it was sideswiped some time ago. He says the gradual stripping began about six months ago.

"They started by knocking the rear window glass out and proceeded to take all the tires, wheels, brake drums and a few other things," Satterfield said. The spoliators recently have removed the radiator, battery, carburetor and the contents of the trunk.

"Now they've started on the engine. There seems to be no stopping point," Satterfield said.

Police are checking several clues. Satterfield surmises that someone either is trying to rebuild another car or is starting from scratch.

The Mature Parent

Put Up—or Shut Up!

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence
DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: My husband makes jokes about marriage in front of other people. He not only calls me his "ball and chain," but whenever marriage is mentioned has to make some crack about the "poor guy" who didn't know what he was getting into.

He always insists on listening to television comedians who make jokes about marriage, too. I am worried about the effect of these slurs on our children. Our younger boy once asked me if daddy liked me.

ANSWER: You don't like the effect of these slurs on yourself, either. You resent them, you know.

However, both you and your husband seem to feel obliged to express your resentment at each other indirectly. You hide your resentment at his disparagement of you behind a respectable concern for its effect on your children; he hides his resentment of you behind these socially accepted, jolly sounding remarks.

Of course, the indirectness is safe, isn't it? So long as safety is our first concern, there's not much anyone can do to help us improve a resented situation.

Whether we resent the indignities of a job or a husband's habit of using slurs on marriage to express his resentment of us, we have to risk losing the job or the husband if we want to improve our situation.

We have to risk the possibility that our demand will be refused to us. We may not only be denied the improvement we want but be stuck with the old situation that's been made worse than it was before.

Nobody can tell us to take this chance. You won't die if your husband continues to make these disparaging jokes. Millions of married people live with unresolved resentments between them.

They prefer the safety of leaving well enough alone to the dangers of trying to improve it, which is fine with me.

What I object to is that they don't really accept well enough and leave it alone. They can't control their resentment. It leaks out of them in responsible sounding complaints like yours and in your husband's jolly sounding jokes about marriage.

Rampart Toastmistress Club Has Repeat Winner

After winning the club level speech contest Mrs. Vincent J. Clarke went on to win first place in the area level of the Toastmistress clubs. This is the second year Rampart Toastmistress Club has had a repeat winner in these speech contests.

Margaret Winkler, regional supervisor, presented Mrs. Clarke the winner's trophy. Toastmistress was Marie Smith of Highline Toastmistress Club and the five Coloradans who acted as judges were: James Allen, Mrs. Dorothy Case, John Elliott, James McDonald and Capt. George Feather.

In the cheering section from the Rampart Club were president Mrs. Lawrence Watson, Col. and Mrs. R. J. Miller and their daughter Barbara, Mrs. Ethel King, Mrs. R. P. Gift, Lt. Col. Vincent J. Clarke and Mrs. Donald Dorris.

Mrs. Clarke now goes on to the council level contest which will be held at the Capri Motel, Denver, Saturday, April 24.

WINS GOLD MEDAL — Miss Marda Zuege won first place and a gold medal in a recent typing championship contest held at St. Mary's High School. Thirteen students competed. Miss Zuege's paper has been sent to Denver for entrance in the state contest. To qualify, students had to pass a fifty-word-per-minute test of five minute duration, and no more than five errors. She typed 67 words per minute with only three errors. Miss Zuege is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Zuege of 704 N. Institute St.

Professional Photos Add Personality

The trend today in homes is back to togetherness. And perhaps the most representative of all is a portrait photograph, which records the expressions and features of the subject. A professional photographer is a businessman artist who knows exactly how to pose, light and photograph his subject.

His talents can be used to bridge the grief of a family separation, record our milestones and create a permanent family record. In today's home portrait photographs can be used in so many attractive ways, that they also become an important part of the decor.

They are especially appropriate for the more personal areas of the home... the bedroom, den, family room and hall. They can also be used alone or grouped with art or other photographs.

Among attractive arrangements is using portrait photographs to decorate a screen used as a room divider or arranged on the wall above a sofa.

One decoration is a handsome wall panel decorated with framed photographs. Use a staple gun to upholster a piece of hardboard with a fabric matching the curtains. Trim the board with braid and arrange the photographs in the center.

Another is a real family tree. Paint a tree on the wall of hall or family room. Decorate its branches with framed photographs dating from recent times as far back as possible. Whether you decide to be imaginative or classic in using your family's portrait photographs, no other families could possibly duplicate or have an arrangement exactly like yours. How could they? It's your own family tree.

Republican Club Hears Talks by Candidates

Five candidates for the City Council were guests at the regular meeting of the El Paso County Republican Women's Club on Monday. Mayor Harry Hoth, also scheduled to appear, was not present as he was detained in Washington, D.C. The candidates, each of whom is seeking a six year term of office on the council, were Charles H. Guy Jr., James K. Johnson, Eugene McCleary, Oscar Watson and Andrew Marshall.

After introducing himself, each man explained briefly why he considered himself qualified to serve on the council. Three of these men will be elected when the city election is held on April 6. In addition, the candidates answered several questions that were asked by members of the club.

Tea was served following the program.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise: I am so mad that I could flip my lid!

All of a sudden my teenage girls and son have started wearing what all the faddists in our town wear, namely, maroon and navy blue.

This grates me no end. I cannot use spray starch on anything. It spots terribly.

Yet, the clothes must be starched. One cannot iron them beautifully without starching. Are you aware of that?

I know you have a couple of children. I am sure you have heard of cranberry? Bleeding Madras?

I depend on you. —Disgusted

Dear Mother: I "am" a mother, too. Cranberry? In my day, we called it maroon, didn't we? Madras? In our day, our mothers were looking for something that would "not" fade, eh?

Navy blue? Oxford cloth? Ugh!

These garments are usually washed in hot water in our washing machines. The hot water and detergent (especially the detergent) softens the fibers of any cotton goods and gets down into the crown of the fabric.

While the garment you are laundering is still wet... NOW is the time to do your light starching! Whether it be machine starching, dip-type starching, or "spray" starching!

I suggest that after you hang these garments on your clothesline, or "before" you put them into your dryer, you take a can of spray starch and spray exactly where you want them heavily starched!

By using this method, the starch, whatever type you use, (PLASTIC INCLUDED!) will absorb into the wet fibers which have been warmed "thus" preventing spots and will last much longer.

And ALWAYS use spray starches on the WRONG side of dark colored fabrics. Then if it does happen to spot, it won't show.

And bless you, Mommy. You write to me any time. —Heloise

Dear Heloise: My family (seven of us) likes banana bread immensely... but have you ever tried mashing a banana that has firm places (or is all firm)?

Here's the answer: Don't peel it! Roll it between your hands until the insides feel mushy, then just scrape it out —all mashed.

No more lumps that a fork couldn't seem to catch. —Lila Haerling

Dear Heloise: My 14-month-old son loves to push doors back and forth — sometimes resulting in pinched fingers and tears.

So I taped a square of sponge near the top of the door jamb, and it stops the door about one inch from closing tight.

Also, a cardboard tube from paper towels is good for holding two lower cabinet doors shut, so baby can't get at things he shouldn't. Flatten the tube just enough to slide through both door handles—then squeeze center of tube the other way so it can't slide out.

(He will probably solve that one of these days, but it has worked thus far!) —Mrs. E. W. C.

Dear Heloise: Here's a new look for your bedroom!

Instead of using decorative pillows, just place a spray of

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

What Took So Long!

DEAR ABBY: What do you think is wrong with a husband who, having slept in the same bed with his wife for thirty years, moves into another bedroom and has only been back to sleep with her twice in two years? And then it was only because they had overnight company and he was forced to sleep with his wife. On those occasions he slept on the edge of the bed with his face to the wall. The wife is not unattractive. In fact, she is always getting compliments on the way she dresses and the way she looks. She bathes every day and gets her hair done once a week. She can't understand the reason for his sudden coolness. Is it any wonder she is —MISERABLE

DEAR MISERABLE: No, it's no wonder. But the wife need not go on being miserable for the rest of her life. She should have made an effort to find out the reason for her husband's "sudden coolness" two years ago. But it's better late than never.

DEAR ABBY: How do you tell a girl she is dirty? We are freshmen in high school and one of our classmates comes to school dirty every day. She doesn't comb her hair, she just "rats" it and lets it go. We would like to tell her as politely as possible that she is dirty, but we don't know how. —FROM INDIANA

DEAR GIRLS: There is no "polite" way to tell a girl she is dirty. She is dirty. She is a girl who looks so pretty and can be changed as often as desired. This is especially nice for teenagers. —Reader

Dear Heloise: Does anyone make her own aprons any more?

I do, from a pattern I've used for 35 years. I make the ties fairly wide and long, then if I need a patch to mend the apron, I just cut a piece of material from the end of the tie. —Marie E. George

Dear Heloise: Don't throw out those old, stretchy, crew socks with the hole in the heel.

Either the top or the foot fits nicely over your worn out hand-water mop and distributes the wax evenly on the floors. —D. Franklin

Solution: Sex Education

(Following is the third of three dispatches on infant mortality and birth defects.)

By DR. VIRGINIA APGAR
(Written for United Press International)

NEW YORK (UPI) — Leaders in public health familiar with prenatal clinics in crowded cities, where nearly half of infant deaths occur, usually are sympathetic to the complaints of pregnant women who have paid one visit — and have not returned.

These complaints range from the tedious, uncomfortable periods of waiting for a clinic examination, to the often exhaustive catechism over financial resources, the impersonality of the staff, the assembly-line atmosphere, the often inadequate rest-room and snack-bar facilities, the transportation expense, and the long distances from home.

There is unanimity among obstetricians, pediatricians and others concerned with maternity and child health care that there is enormous room — and compelling reason — for improvement in prenatal clinics.

I have been to many of them, both in so-called charity and voluntary hospitals, and almost invariably we find the identical problems everywhere: overcrowding, long waiting periods, lack of manpower and lack of any opportunity for exercise of the personal doctor-patient relationship.

But let me say to women in early pregnancy, that even if they do feel some reluctance over making their first visit to a prenatal clinic, we usually find that only about one in five will need to make a second visit somewhat later.

Those who are requested to return at close intervals are the high-risk cases where we find such disorders as diabetes, high blood pressure, anemia and obesity. In these cases, there are remedial measures that can be taken.

Many pediatricians around the country to whom I have talked and other health authorities assert that the majority of Americans look upon childbirth much too flippantly and frivolously.

They concur with this view of Dr. Gertrude L. Bramley, chief medical officer of the Handicapped and Crippled Children's Service, District of Columbia General Hospital:

"Most of our young people look upon marriage as nothing more than a lark and a ball. They forget or just don't know that the peak incidence of death in this country surrounds the first day of birth and the next 48 hours."

From all of my colleagues in public health I hear increasing demands for more education in the schools on sex and reproduction than is now available.

Some advocate that formal sex education start in the elementary grades, if not in kindergarten. In far too many school systems, competent instruction in this area is virtually non-existent.

The time is long overdue for us to roll up our sleeves and get to work. Despite our widely-held Puritan conception that sex just really isn't something to be talked about, we can start now to teach our young the basic facts of reproduction throughout their school years.

We can give them sound training in physiology, hygiene and diet, as well as marital counseling. And, most certainly, we can make our prenatal clinics more inviting and less wearing on those expectant mothers who should use them.

How to Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

© 1964: By the Chicago Tribune

TETANUS STILL WITH US

Tetanus (lockjaw) is easy to prevent but difficult to treat after it occurs. We rely upon prophylaxis because the few who contract the disease go thru the torments of hell. They suffer from painful spasms of the muscles of the neck, face, and jaw. One out of five afflicted children die and the rate is much higher in adults. The United States public health service reported more than 250 cases last year. Wise parents keep track of their offspring's immunity status because booster doses are necessary from time to time. Most children and younger adults are partially protected because of the tetanus toxoid shots given along with other immunization. All they need when injured is another booster dose to bring their immunity to fighting strength.

The causative agent (Clostridium tetani) looks like a microscopic drumstick or squash racket. It is a normal inhabitant of the intestine of ruminants, horses, many domestic animals, and occasionally in man.

Tetanus spores remain alive for years in soil and even in house dust. The organism thrives best in an oxygen-free environment such as the base of a puncture wound. They multiply and manufacture a lethal poison that attacks nerves and muscles.

Those who have received the toxoid within a year should not be concerned about tetanus following a serious or contaminated wound. A booster dose is required when the toxoid was administered within five years. On the other hand, those sustaining a serious injury who have not received toxoid for five years (but previously were immunized) usually get along on a large prophylactic dose of penicillin or tetracycline. The antibiotics are capable of controlling or preventing tetanus under these circumstances.

Tetanus antitoxin is needed for the totally unprotected person. The tetanus toxoid vaccine bodies and is not used as a prophylactic, once an injury has occurred. The antitoxin contains horse serum to which many individuals are allergic. This is a serious drawback and explains why the toxoid is preferred.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

HEADACHE AFTER CONCUSSION

H. G. writes: Is it unusual to continue suffering from headache and pain in different parts of the head and other weird manifestations eight months after a serious concussion? An electroencephalogram taken two months later showed no brain damage.

REPLY

It is not unusual to have headache and odd sensations after a concussion. We don't know whether these symptoms stem from the injury or from nervousness.

TUMOR DETECTION

W. S. writes: What is a mammography done for?

REPLY

The breasts are X-rayed to diagnose small tumors. In some instances, it is possible to determine whether the lesion is benign or malignant.

REDDENED PALMS

Mrs. D. writes: Could liver palms during pregnancy affect the unborn child?

REPLY

No. This is a simple redness of the palms and is seen in a number of conditions, including pregnancy and liver disease.

GIRDLES AND LONGEVITY

T. D. writes: Do women have a longer life span because unlike men, they wear a girdle?

REPLY

No, but it gives them a shorter waistline and a longer look.

Date-Line
By Ele and Walt DuLaney

Dear Ele: I know I'm borrowing trouble and worrying in vain, but please don't laugh at me. I just can't stop wondering "What do I do if my date doesn't show up on prom night?" Maybe if you give me a good solution, I'll stop chewing my nails. —Miss Nervous.

Dear Miss: Here's my prescription for you. Get your date's home phone number as soon as possible and then call him from afternoon to double - check the time he'll pick you up. (Explain that you want to be certain you don't keep him waiting, and he'll be glad you called.)

If he's over 30 minutes late on prom night, phone him and find out what's delaying him. Be sure to keep your temper in rein, for even the most dependable person can oversleep, have car trouble, etc.

If you can't contact your date at all, and you've waited a full hour, shed your prom finery and ask your parents to take you to a movie or to some other place you'd enjoy. That's making the best of a sad situation.

Will he stand you up? Well, all I can say is that although we've received hundreds of letters outlining prom mishaps, I've never yet heard of a boy standing up a girl on the big night. —Ele.

Dear Walt: You'll probably think I'm kidding with this question, but I'm not. I hang around with a gang of boys and we spend a lot of time "girl watching." Sometimes I think it's not right for us to do this. What are your thoughts on the merits of this sport? —Girl Watcher No. 8.

Dear No. 8: I'd say girl watching is a fine activity as long as the boys are subtle and mature enough so that they don't embarrass the girls who are under scrutiny. What could be more natural than noticing the beauty of the opposite sex?

The only "girl watchers" I'd worry about are those fellows who simply stand and leer and make loud, vulgar comments, but never get up to actually socializing and making friends with the opposite sex. Such post - 20 viewers seem maladjusted to me. —Walt.

Dear Ele and Walt: If you want to be considered a gentleman, do you have to let all the women get off the elevator before you get off at your floor? —In Front.

Dear Front: Good manners are simply formalized acts of kindness. If you're at the front of the elevator, we'd say it's kindest if you get off first. Forcing the other debarking passengers to squeeze past you would be senseless and awkward.

We go for the "closest-to-the-door, gets-off-first" practice, regardless of sex. —Ele and Walt.

Prom time is upcoming — and if you're worrying about it, we've got just the newsletter for you. "Prom Pointers" is your guide. It contains hints on how to ask that special girl, how to make a good impression on her folks and how to say "good - night" to her. You can get your own copy by sending a dime and a stamped, long, self - addressed envelope to Prom Pointers, Box DL, in care of this paper. You'll get a speedy reply if you don't enclose questions with your request.

WHY THEY'RE IN KENTUCKY

LOUISVILLE (AP) — George Washington unwittingly had a hand in development of the distilling industry in Kentucky. The president's approval of excise taxes on distilled liquors in 1791 led to the so-called whisky rebellion in Pennsylvania and Maryland. Many distillers moved to Kentucky and set up businesses that became some of the well-known distilleries still operating in the state.

What Has Become Of the Former Isolationists?

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO — If it comes to more than an occasional tit for tat response to Communist aggression in Southeast Asia, it is a sure bet that the city of Chicago, once the stronghold of the America First movement, won't be taking any appeasement line. This is not only apparent in the local news editorials it is also evident in the conversation of people who, back in 1939, wanted very much to stay out of World War II.

Some commentators think it odd that the isolationists of 1939 should be willing to do anything in 1965 that it takes to keep the Russians and the Red Chinese in their place. How can it be, so it is asked, that the old followers of Bob Taft and Herbert Hoover should suddenly be willing to risk war in far places that are even less known to westerners than Czechoslovakia was to Britain's Neville Chamberlain?

The answer to this is that only a surface inconsistency is involved in the changing contemporary attitudes toward possible war. When Bob Taft and Herbert Hoover and Chicago's General Robert Wood were opposing our involvement in World War II, they were animated by something far more practical than mere sentimental pacifism. Their thinking was primarily strategic.

What they foresaw in Europe was the possibility of a long and debilitating stalemate on the Russo-German front, with Communists and Nazis bleeding each other into impotence. They could have been wrong about such a possibility, but the idea of "letting the rats fight it out" was certainly not appeasement.

It is still possible, in 1965, to hope that the modern "rats" — the Soviet Communists and the Red Chinese — can somehow be thrown at each other's throats. But when Khrushchev, who was antipathetic to Red Chinese pretensions to world Communist leadership, was sent into ostracism, this hope became less tenable. If only for the sake of self-preservation, the two great centers of the Red world must be compelled to support each other in a pinch.

What is apparent to the student of Soviet Russian history is that no leader has long survived an advocacy of a conciliatory line toward the West. A Soviet defector of my acquaintance, says what really turned Khrushchev and others against Malenkov was the latter's proposal to settle the East German question on a compromise basis. This was considered a form of surrender — and Malenkov paid the penalty by being banished to run that power station somewhere in Siberia. When Khrushchev finally grabbed the top spot in Russia, he, too, became the champion of the consumer. But he also sent Soviet tanks into Hungary. There was no question of "surrender" until Khrushchev made the mistake of preaching

"goulash diplomacy" vis-a-vis the West and, simultaneously, began to provoke a Soviet-Red Chinese split. It was not long before he met with Malenkov's fate.

So the possibility that the Soviets and the Red Chinese can be pushed into mutually suicidal conflict recedes. And the former "isolationists," who think hard-headedly about strategic matters, see clearly that the West must put its trust in its own strength if communism is to be kept at bay. This is what underlies the apparently contradictory shift in the attitude of important Chicagoans toward our involvement in faraway places like South Vietnam.

There is no deep inconsistency in the changing "liberal" attitude any more than there is an inconsistency among the old "isolationists." It's still a confrontation of hard-heads and soft-heads. And Chicago is still full of hard-headed thinkers.

A New York Central dispatcher in Indianapolis reported at least one car, a mail car, overturned. He said a coach, diner car and sleeper car were upright.

The train was bound from New York to St. Louis.

The Ohio Highway Patrol post here reported several persons were taken by ambulances to Marion General Hospital.

Assessed Valuation Is Quoted Wrongly

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — per $10,000 assessed valuation. A Nashville Tennessean reporter telephoned the tax assessor's office in Houston, Tex., to ask the tax rate per $1,000 valuation.

A clerk told the reporter, Julie Hollabaugh, it was $370. Checking notes later, thinking the rate pretty high, the reporter called back.

"It's $370," the clerk confirmed, then paused. "Wait a minute," she said. "That's $370

People in Texas always ask the rate in terms of $10,000, not $1,000."

State's Hunting, Fishing Industry May Reach Saturation, Speaker Says

Colorado has a $114 million hunting-fishing industry and offers one of the nation's top outdoor recreation areas, but population and its ever-increasing mobility may lead to a "saturation point," resulting in a reduction of the state's "harvest," Jess Williams of the Colorado Game and Fish Commission told representatives of the state Chamber of Commerce Manager's Association Thursday.

Williams was a member of a panel which discussed "Tourist Promotion" in the El Pomar Room of the Broadmoor Hotel. Other panelists were Clay Banta, manager of the Colorado Springs Chamber; Lou Cobb of the State Advertising and Publicity Department; William Cheney, an assistant to the director of Parks and Recreation for Colorado; and Dale Hollingsworth of the Grand Junction Chamber.

Williams said a survey reveals that outdoor recreation is expected to triple within the next 35 years and by 1975, when the interstate highway system is completed, Colorado will be within 24 hours driving distance from any point in the United States.

He said hunting, fishing and all outdoor recreation will be affected by population growth and the influx of visitors to the state.

"What does this mean? It means we're going to reach a saturation point and something's going to happen. We're going to have to reduce the crop," Williams said.

Quoting a survey, he said out-of-state visitors to Colorado are expected to increase from 785,000 to 3,300,000 by 1975. Deer hunting licenses have doubled since 1956 and licenses issues to hunt elk have doubled in the last eight years, he said.

Williams said the Game and Fish Commission is attempting to "spread out" tourist to reduce hunting and fishing pressures in some areas.

"The opportunity is there. We are trying to provide opportunities without hurting resources," he said.

Williams said non-resident hunters and anglers represent a huge chunk of the state economy. He estimated that non-resident hunters, totaling only 29 per cent, represent 68 per cent of the income.

By way of illustration he said resident deer hunters spend an average of $88 per trip in Colorado and non-resident woodsmen spend $306. Resident elk hunters spend $123 per trip and non-residents spend $401 per five-day trip to the state.

The comparison for fishermen is similar, he said, pointing out that resident trout fishermen spent $106 per trip and non-residents, $247.

The hunting and fishing industry is a vital "cog" in the state economy, but the state Game and Fish Department may have to cut its services in the not too distant future, Williams said.

Nine Roadside Rest Stops To Be Completed in State

Nine roadside rest stops, each costing an estimated $25,000 and complete with toilets, parking areas, information booth and pay station telephones, should be completed throughout the state by the end of summer, William Cheney, an assistant to the director of Parks and Recreation for Colorado, said Thursday.

Cheney, a guest speaker at the spring conference of the Colorado Chamber of Commerce Managers, said the nine rest stations is a phase of planning. Plans call for a rest area every 12 minutes along Colorado highways when the interstate system is completed by 1975, based upon 70 mile per hour speed limits, he said.

A member of a panel which discussed "Tourist Promotion," Cheney said nine stations will be constructed every year until the standard is met.

Designed for safety, beauty and "to slow tourists down in Colorado," the roadside venture is "kind of an infant program, but is swinging along," Cheney said.

One station has been completed at "Natural Fort," located two miles south of the Wyoming border on old Route 87. Cheney said the station encompasses about 20 acres. Trees are to be planted this spring.

Other rest areas are under construction in Raton Pass, located just north of the New Mexico line on Highway 25 and at the former site of Hadley on Route 150. Cheney said the Raton Pass stopping area is being constructed on the northbound traffic lane and a companion park will be located across the New Mexico border off the southbound lane.

Stations will be constructed near Pfeiffer Monument on Route 160; Escalante Canyon in western Colorado near Grand Junction; Hayden, near Craig on U.S. 40; Virginia Dale in northern Colorado on Route 287 near the Wyoming line; one near Cache la Poudre and one about

Local Boy Scouts To Urge City Election Voting

Members of the Pikes Peak Council, Boy Scouts of America, have launched a campaign to urge citizens of Colorado Springs to vote in the city election April 6.

Col. Howard H. Cloud Jr., president of the council, said this is part of Scouting's "American Heritage Program" whereby Cubs, Scouts and Explorers will be asked to aid in reminding their parents and neighbors to register.

Special mobilization announcements have been sent to Scoutmasters and Explorer Advisors calling for meetings between 1:30 and 5 p.m. Sunday to discuss the program to troop members.

The council has set a goal of registering at least a third more citizens for the election, Col. Cloud said.

He reminded Scouts to inform their parents and neighbors that 5 p.m. Tuesday is the deadline for registration at City Hall. The City Clerk's office will remain open until 8 p.m. today to accommodate persons wanting to register at that time. Spouses may register for each other but single persons must register for themselves.

Qualifications to register to vote are: American citizenship, at least 21 years of age; a resident of the state for at least one year; a resident of El Paso County for 90 days, in the city for 30 days, and in the voting precinct for 15 days.

If you voted in the 1963 election and still reside in your precinct, you are still registered and eligible to vote April 6.

Spanish Peaks Homemakers to Meet in Springs

The Spanish Peaks District of Future Homemakers of America will hold its district convention April 3-4 in the Alamo Hotel, hosted by the Fountain F.H.A. Chapter.

Theme of the two-day meeting will be "Young Women in the World of Work." Discussion groups will be held on cake decorating, home demonstration agents, bridal consultants, international service, gift making, nursing in homes and practical nursing as careers.

Other activities include a style show, banquet and installation of officers.

The Spanish Peaks District is comprised of chapters including Cotopaxi, Florence, Walsenburg, Pueblo County, Weston, Fountain, Harrison, Trinidad and Hoehne. Miss Cathy Torbit of the Fountain group is chairman of the district.

A project supported by the Spanish Peaks District project is the Boy's Ranch in La Junta.

Boy Injured Riding Disk Behind Car

A small boy was seriously injured Thursday when he was thrown into the side of a parked car while riding on a metal disk being towed by another car, the State Patrol reported.

John Young, 8, 1019 Chambers Dr., suffered possible head or spine injuries, and was taken to Penrose Hospital by E & E Ambulance. He was reported under intensive care and in fair condition this morning.

The accident occurred at 11:05 a.m. Thursday when Young was riding on a four foot metal disk being towed by a car driven by Kirk B. Jensen, 16, 2002 Mesa Rd. Another boy was riding on the disk with Young at the time of the accident, but was not identified.

The Patrol said that as they were moving in the 2400 block of Mesa Road, the metal disk skidded to the right, throwing Young into a parked car belonging to Edward F. Rodgers, 55, 1406 E. Uintah St. The other boy was uninjured, and the patrol said no damage was done to either car.

'BANK PRESIDENT' — Miss Starr Stiner, a senior at Wasson High School, holds the honor of being the first woman bank president in Colorado. She is shown here with the officers of the Achievers Exchange Bank of Southern Colorado—a Junior Achievement Company—Steve Hawk, vice president, Miss Judy Pratt, executive vice president and Mike Bonicelli, secretary. Hawk, a Wasson senior, was voted Salesman of the Year by the SWAP Club of Colorado Springs and will go on to San Diego for the national Junior Achievement competition. Bonicelli, a sophomore at Wasson, was the runner-up. The officers of the Achievers Bank and their advisers were guests of The Exchange National Bank at dinner at the Village Inn on Tuesday in recognition of the success the Achievers Exchange Bank has enjoyed this year.

Poster Contest Slated for Grange Week

April 4 through 10 has been set aside as National Grange week. During this time the general public may learn more about what the Grange is and what a Granger does. A Poster Contest is being held for the young people of the Manitou Park Grange. These posters will show what the Grange means to the youngsters.

Mar-Rae Print Shop has offered the use of the large window in their shop for an exhibit to show what the Grange is and how it functions. Here the winning posters will be exhibited. All phases of Grange work will also be exhibited to anyone who sees what the objects and activities of the organization are: soil conservation, agriculture, legislation, highway improvement, mail delivery, telephone service, community service; local, state and national contests in baking, sewing, knitting and needlework, square dancing, plays and various other things.

These are all things in which the Grange regularly takes an active part and all will be exhibited. A lot of work is going into it and it should be very entertaining as well as informative. Be watching for further information about "What the Grange Is" in the coming weeks.

Driver Gets $100 Fine Plus 30-Day Driving Suspension

A $100 fine plus a 30-day driving suspension were imposed on Lester Christian Thursday by Municipal Court Judge Allan Asher on a guilty finding of reckless driving.

Christian, 23, 1564 Happiness Dr., was cited March 4 by Cpl. C. J. Cates when his car struck a parked car which in turn struck another parked car in the 1600 block of east Palmer Park Boulevard.

Cates said Christian consented to an intoximeter test which resulted in a .14 reading. He said the man said he'd had two beers prior to the accident. Judge Asher ruled that he must have had more alcohol than this from the reading which was almost high enough to cause a driving under the influence charge being filed against him.

Lois Kelly, 2570 E. San Miguel St., was given a warning on a charge of parking in a restricted zone.

In a companion case, Garitt Griebel, 22, 1609 S. Wahsatch St., was found guilty of following too close and was fined $10. Mrs. Clara Martinez, 36, 228 E. Las Vegas St., was found not guilty of a backing charge.

Jesus Guinn, 21, Ent Air Force Base, was found not guilty of careless driving and damage to city property.

Virginia Robinett, 39, 3303 N. Hancock Ave., was fined $25 on a guilty plea to careless driving.

Judge Asher converted a careless driving charge against Roberta Pettibone, 1319 N. Nevada Ave., to a warning ticket, and continued disposition on a charge of damage to city property to April 13.

Victor Quintana, 52, 1217 N. El Paso St., claimed he wasn't "exactly drunk" when asked for his plea on a charge of drunkenness.

Quintana said he was on his way to the "court of honor" meeting Wednesday and only stopped in at the Park Cafe for two beers.

Judge Asher sentenced him to 15 days in city jail.

Tools Valued at $500 Stolen From Trailer

Burglars broke into a trailer house belonging to the Olson Plumbing and Heating Co. and stole tools valued at $500, the Sheriff's Office reported Thursday.

The trailer was parked near a new apartment house being built at 690 Don Juan St. Deputy Sheriff Bob Stocks said the door had been forced.

Fire Extinguishers Taken From Buildings

Four fire extinguishers valued at a total of $100 were taken from two apartment buildings during the past week and a half, police reported today.

Frank E. Tong, manager of Circle Manor Apartments, 2910 and 2920 E. Bijou St., told police the extinguishers were taken from the rear stairwells of the two buildings. He said the last time he remembered seeing them was March 14. The extinguishers used soda and acid, were two and a half gallon capacity, and were valued at $25 each.

James Dean Weaver Died at Hospital

James Dean Weaver, month old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Weaver, of Calhan, died Wednesday at a local hospital. He was born Feb. 16, 1965, in Colorado Springs. He is survived by grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Weaver of Denver, and three sisters, Elaine, Kathleen and Erma Sue Weaver, all of the home.

Funeral services will be held Saturday, care of Jay's Funeral Home, Benkelman, Neb. The Chapel of Memories Mortuary had charge of local arrangements.

Man Booked Into Jail On Complaint Thursday

Harold Kendrick, 37, of the Air Point Motel, 4290 N. Nevada Ave. was booked into county jail early Thursday morning following a signed complaint alleging disturbance, the sheriff's office said.

According to Deputy Sheriff Eldon McCune, Kendrick returned to his motel room and began yelling and arguing with his wife disturbing the other residents.

G. Govig, owner of the motel, then came to the sheriff's office, signed the complaint, and Kendrick was placed in jail.

County Spelling Bee Rescheduled

The second leg of the annual El Paso County Spelling Bee was bogged down by snow Thursday. Spell-offs have been rescheduled for 1 p.m. March 30 in the County Office Building auditorium.

One elementary champion representing schools under 1,000, and the fifth 7th-8th grade state qualifier will be named. Four junior high students qualified for the state contest in Denver May 8 during county competition Wednesday.

County Will Consider License Request

El Paso County Commissioners will consider a liquor license request by William Patrick O'Brien of 1006 N. 19th St., at 10 a.m. April 26.

O'Brien said he plans to open a restaurant at 1300 S. 21st St. The building where the restaurant is to be located contains about 4,000 square feet, he said. Steak will be a prime fare offered by the restaurant.

Commissioners set the liquor license hearing at their regular Thursday meeting.

Widfield Gymkhana For Sunday Cancelled

The Widfield Riders horse show and gymkhana which was scheduled for Sunday, has been cancelled because of bad weather.

The show will be rescheduled, and the date will be announced later, Fritz Wampler said.

Fremont Co. Archers Plan Sunday Tourney

The Fremont Bowman Arch Club of Canon City will hold a field shoot Sunday, Fred Roew, president of the club, has announced.

The meet will be held at the club's outdoor range on the Harley Peacock ranch about 13 miles north of Canon City in the Red Canon Park area.

Registration will be on Sunday from 9 to 10 a.m. Shooting will start at 10 a.m.

Trophies will be awarded for first place in all adult classes. First place medals will be awarded in the intermediate, junior and cub classes.

City Building Permits Total $8 Million

City building permits issued so far this year exceed $8 million, according to figures in the City's Inspections Department.

It is anticipated by city officials that the permit total for the next three months will far exceed the $8 million worth already issued in 1965.

Sizeable permits are anticipated for the Antlers Plaza, new El Paso Club, construction at Colorado College, school additions and other projects.

If the already brisk pace of permits quickens, as anticipated, this year will probably mark another all-time high in construction for the City of Colorado Springs, officials say. The present record of $36.5 million was established in 1964.

Suit, Involving 800 Acres of Land, Started

A civil suit involving 800 acres of land three miles south of Monument started in district court Thursday with Judge David W. Enoch on the bench.

It has been brought by F. M. Setchell against Raymond R. and Christine J. Dellacrose.

According to the complaint Setchell bought the land from the defendants in 1954 for $120,000. At the time he says he drew up a deed of trust and promissory note for $68,312.19 to the defendants which provided for payments of $5,000 plus interest each Nov. 15, and it is stated he made the payments through 1958.

In November of the following year Setchell says he became in default due to circumstances beyond his control, and the defendants brought foreclosure action in early 1960.

The property was sold by public trustees to Christine Dellacrose, the only bidder, for $52,471.02. Setchell alleges that subsequent to the sale and during and even after the expiration period of redemption, he was "continuously promised, encouraged and assured" by the Dellacroses that they would not insist on strict redemption, that they would accept partial payment and refinancing, and that they had no desire to see him lose his equity to the property.

The plaintiff charges that these statements were false and fraudulent, and that in reliance on them, he had been deprived of his ownership of the property and of his legal aid to redeem it.

He further claims that had he not been deceived he would have been able to make the necessary financial arrangements to redeem the property within the redemption period. He also charges Christine Dellacrose applied for and received deed to the property from the public trustee and concealed the matter from him while continuing to talk of redemption.

On Oct. 10, 1960, Raymond Dellacrose, says Setchell, informed him they were keeping the property and asked he should remove himself and his personal property from the premises.

Setchell asks that the defendants be required to refinance the property as they agreed, and to convey the title to him upon completion of the negotiation.

In a second claim he asks the court to order the defendants to reconvey the property to him upon his payment of $52,471.02, the amount required to redeem the property.

In a second claim he asks that if the first is not granted he get $387,500 damages.

The amount, he alleges, is the difference between a fair market price of the property at the time his right of redemption expired he was required to pay to redeem it.

In a third claim Setchell asks $25,000 charging the defendants' conduct was surrounded by circumstances of fraud and insult and entitling him to such damages.

Quarter Horse Show Cancelled

Because of the weather, the Wyoming and Nebraska contestants have requested that the Reed Ranch Quarter Horse Show, scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, be cancelled.

New dates approved by the American Quarter Horse Association are April 24 and 25.

New entry blanks may be obtained by writing to the Reed Ranch, 6000 Wilson Rd., Miles, W. L. Conde said.

CC Baseball Team Opens With Tour of Southwest

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

It may seem a bit preposterous at this particular time, but Colorado College plans to open its 1965 baseball season Thursday.

Of course there have been a number of area teams with similar ideas for a couple of weeks now but the Tigers' chances do appear to be better. Because second-year coach, Bob Johnson, had the foresight to schedule CC's inaugural as part of a swing through the Southwest.

The Tigers' busy opening slate calls for a single game against Adams State at Alamosa Thursday, a twin bill with New Mexico Highlands Friday, two games with St. Joseph's of Albuquerque Saturday, and a single contest with New Mexico Highlands Sunday.

"Our pitching staff naturally is not going to be ready for this kind of work the first week," Johnson said Thursday. "But this swing is what I've wanted and although we may not pick up too many wins, the experience will be excellent and it's bound to pay dividends later."

Johnson, who amazed the local baseball world a year ago with a feat of near-miracle proportions at CC, is optimistic about the club's chances this season. Tiger diamond antics had been one of Colorado Springs' more enduring comedies until Johnson arrived to take over the school's hockey program and had the baseball task dropped on his shoulders as well.

Several weeks after the new coach took the reins, the smiles were fading. CC swatted its way to a 12-7 record, took second in the Rocky Mountain Conference with a 10-6 mark, and generally showed a complete turnaround in its program in a single season. Of the school's major sports teams, the baseball club was easily the most successful.

"I, for one, wish we were still in a conference," Johnson said this week (the Tigers dropped out of the RMC at the end of last season). Four of our six losses in the league last year were to CSC but I think we could give them all they wanted by the time our team is settled later this spring.

"Of course, we have a much tougher schedule this year," the CC coach added. "These early teams we play will be good. In addition we have added two games with the Air Force Academy, one with Denver University, and we've kept CSC on the schedule."

Johnson's losses from a year ago were not drastic. In fact, the Tigers will field a fairly veteran club this spring, especially in the area of front line pitching. Back are all three of the top hurlers of a year ago, although two are only sophomores, and the club has added another promising freshman.

The Tigers return sophomore Warner Reeser who was 4-3 in 1964 and who Johnson calls "generally our best pitcher." Back also is sophomore Bill Jankowski who was 3-1, and senior Jeff Sauer who was 6-2. The newcomer is frosh Craig Clayberg who was the top pitcher for Abraham Lincoln in Denver last spring. Jim Bailey, a returning squad member, rounds out the staff.

Behind the plate CC will have returnee Roger Williams, the team home run leader of a year ago who carried a hefty .352 average. Wayne Nelson, another promising freshman from Minneapolis, will serve as the backup man in that department.

The first base duties will be split between a pair of excellent freshmen. Greg Stephens of Minneapolis and Wayne Woodyward from Pueblo Centennial's South Central League champions of last year. At second Johnson has inserted Chuck Reinking, leading hitter at Palmer High the past two seasons, and another freshman.

Shortstop duties will be handled by Dee Wilson, last year's All-RMC player at that position and a .357 hitter. Third base has settled down to a battle between junior Steve Ebert, a returning letterman, and freshman Fred Fisher from Las Vegas, Nev. John Genz, another returnee, will serve as the utility player. Ebert batted .280 last year and Genz compiled a .286 mark.

Two outfield positions are filled. Dave Peterson, a junior who was last year's leading hitter with a .415 average, will be in left. And Carl Clay, a senior who hit .351 and was named the team's most valuable player, will be in center. Candidates for the right field spot include senior non-letterman Gus Hart, Woodyard, and Ebert.

Top losses from last year's team include pitcher Mike Irfield, Reno Van Patten, the second leading hitter, third baseman John Simus, and first-sacker Dennis Walker. Steve Mills and Mike Mestek, lettermen who are still in school, did not report this spring.

"We will be better down the middle," Johnson said this week. "We will definitely be better defensively. The three freshmen kids who figure to start are all much better defensive players. Being young, we don't know how they'll hit. Our pitching is not really deep enough but it should be adequate. Overall, I think by May I we'll have a pretty fair team."

That is, if it's not still snowing by May 1!

Ex-Collegians Lead Azalea Golf Tourney

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Sturdy ex-collegians who starred in football and basketball were running one-two as the $28,750 Azalea Open golf tournament moved into its second round today.

Claude King, 32, who caddied here at the Cape Fear Country Club, was $600 richer after picking up a bonus award for his seven-under-par 65 that won him the first round lead Thursday.

The 6-foot-2, 207-pound former East Carolina College fullback was only one stroke ahead of Glenn Stuart, part-time touring pro from Grand Rapids, Mich.

Stuart, who has played only the winter tour for four years, returning each spring to his club job, finished spectacularly with a birdie and an eagle to shoot 66.

Stuart, 30, was a basketball star at Central Michigan in his college days. He also stands 6-foot-2, and weighs 195.

King, who coached and taught at a high school in Virginia Beach before becoming a touring pro four years ago, had a dream round, missing by two shots the tournament record Bob Toski set over the 6,700-yard, par-72 course 10 years ago.

He needed only 25 putts. One was a 16-footer and another was a 10-footer, but the others were eight feet or less. "I got the ball closer to the hole consistently than I ever have," he said.

"I've had some good chances before, but something usually has happened," King said. "I've wanted so badly to play well at Wilmington whenever I come here. I looked around and everybody I know is standing around watching me."

Last year he was in hot contention before a final round 77 knocked him down to 18th place. Both he and Stuart started their rounds on the back nine as the field of 146 began play from the first and 10th tees. King shot 33 for the back nine and finished with 32 on the front side, with birdies on his last four holes.

Stuart had a pair of 33s, finishing with a birdie from 12 feet on No. 8, and an eagle two on the ninth, where he holed out a 175-yard No. 3 iron shot.

Forty-three-year-old Hampton Auld, who quit the tour several years ago to take the job at the Cape Fear club, came up with a 67 to hold third place.

Five men were tied at 68, including Jacky Cupit, who is trying to clinch a berth in the Masters two weeks from now with a high finish here.

Ten men shot 69. Dow Finsterwald, Doug Ford and Tommy Jacobs were the touring regulars in this group.

The field will be cut to the low 70 and ties tonight for the final rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Detroit Red Wings Claim First NHL Title Since 1957; Beat Rangers

DETROIT (AP) — Sid Abel, seasons for journeyman defenseman Bill Gadsby. For others, like Gordie Howe and Captain Alex Delvecchio, now in his 14th NHL season, exploded for three goals for his second career hat trick.

"It's a good team to be captain of," said Delvecchio. "Everybody put out."

Howe, who spent eight minutes of the first period unconscious after a collision with teammate Parker MacDonald, came back to assist on two goals.

"I leaned over to get the puck and Mac clipped me," grinned receiving owner Bruce Norris. "I guess he didn't know how quick I was."

winning 13 of their last 16 games while Montreal and Chicago faded from contention.

Norm Ullman scored twice to up his season's total to a league-leading 41 goals, highest by a Red Wing since Howe got 44 in 1956-57. Paul Henderson and Eddie Joyal got the others.

New York got two goals from Earl Ingarfield and single tallies from Jean Ratelle and Doug Robinson.

The victory was Detroit's 14th straight on home ice, setting a record previously held by Montreal.

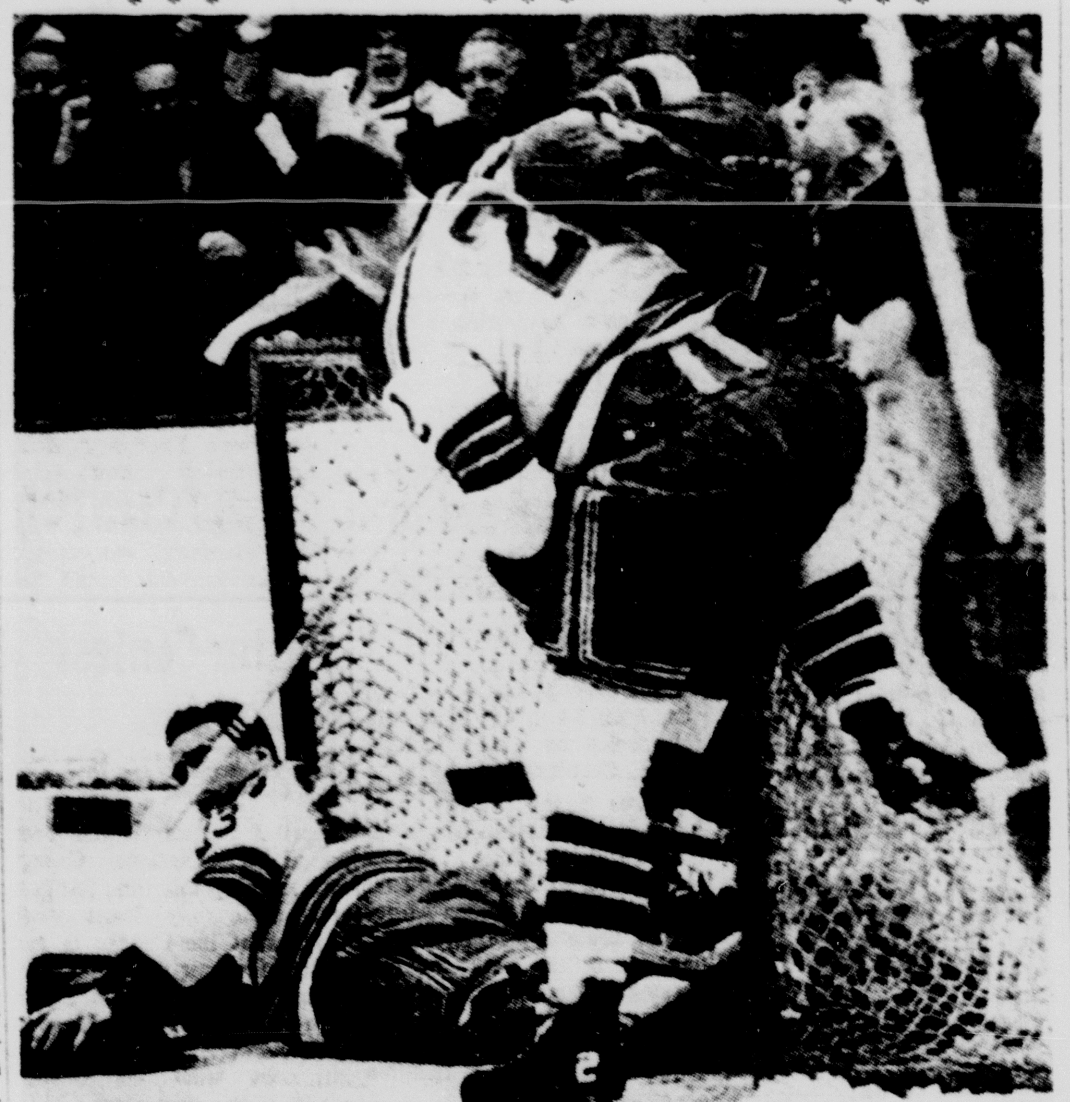

Gov. George Romney of Michigan congratulated Abel in a telegram sent at the end of the second period. "It just goes to show you the polls can be wrong," Romney's wire said, referring to pre-season predictions that the Wings would finish no higher than fourth.

Abel, who credited the late season Red Wings hot streak to the scoring of Ullman, Howe and Delvecchio, and the tight defensive play of rookie Roger Crozier in the nets, said: "I just hope we can keep it going."

Red Wings Calm After Nailing NHL Pennant

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Red Wings took their 13th National Hockey League title in 39 years like old pros.

There was no screaming, shouting or champagne in the dressing room. Just a quiet

"good going, Normie," from Gordie Howe to Norm Ullman and "I'm sure glad this race is over," from Sid Abel, manager-coach.

The title clinched with Thursday night's 7-4 victory over New York, was Abel's first in seven years as Red Wing coach.

First to congratulate him was Detroit owner Bruce Norris. "Well, we did it," Abel said to Norris.

In a rare trip to an opponent's dressing room, New York Coach

Red Sullivan shook Abel's hand and said "congratulations, Sid. All the best the rest of the way."

Wing Captain Alex Delvecchio, who scored a hat trick, said "it's a good team to be captain of. Everybody put out."

Gov. George Romney wired the team at the end of the second period when the score was 6-2. "Congratulations to the most Abel team and all the Red Wings," the telegram said. "It just goes to show you the polls can be wrong," Romney referred to pre-season predictions by hockey observers, many of whom picked the Wings to finish fourth or fifth in the six-team league.

Abel credited the late-season Red Wings' championship drive to the hot scoring of Ullman, Delvecchio and Howe, and to the defensive play of rookie Roger Crozier in the nets. Crozier had six shutouts.

"I just hope we can keep it going," Abel said.

Royals Face Must Win Tilt Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cincinnati Royals face a must game at Philadelphia tonight as the National Basketball Association divisional semifinal playoffs resume.

Philadelphia won the first game of the best-of-five Eastern Division series at Cincinnati Wednesday night 119-117 in overtime. Jack McMahon, Cincinnati coach, commented: "It's going to be tough for us going into Philadelphia one down. The next game is a must for us."

The St. Louis Hawks, playing a second straight game at home, will try to even the Western Division series at 1-1 by beating the Baltimore Bullets. The Bullets gained what Coach Buddy Jeannette termed "a psychological advantage" by defeating the Hawks Wednesday 108-105.

How big Wilt Chamberlain of the 76ers and Oscar Robertson of the Royals perform probably will be a vital factor in the game at Philadelphia. Chamberlain has been hampered by a stomach ailment and the Big O with an injured leg.

"Wilt's stomach definitely affected his playing," said Philadelphia Coach Dolph Schayes after Wednesday's game. "If it gets better we'll win the series. But if Oscar becomes 100 per cent well and Wilt doesn't, we'll win. Dolph's voice trailed off."

St. Louis also faces a must win game against Baltimore. "It sure puts us in a hole," said St. Louis Coach Richie Guerin after his Hawks lost the opening game. "But we've been there before and come back."

The third game of the St. Louis-Baltimore series will be played at Baltimore Saturday night. The Cincinnati-Philadelphia series shifts back to Cincinnati for a Sunday afternoon televised game.

Dartmouth Cross-Country Skiers Lead NCAA Meet

CRYSTAL MOUNTAIN, Wash. (AP) — Dartmouth University carried the cross-country team title into the second round of the 1965 National Collegiate Athletic Association ski championships today after edging out favored Colorado and Denver in Thursday's opening event of the three-day meet.

The slalom is on today's calendar.

Less of a surprise was the individual victory of wily Mike Elliott, who beat close friend Mike Gallagher by almost a minute to place first in the race over nine miles of sticky snow.

Elliott is a senior at Ft. Lewis College in Durango, Colo., a school in its first year of ski competition.

Gallagher, ace of the University of Colorado's distance squad started a half minute ahead of Elliott in 33rd position and was timed in 56:20.

Durango Mike passed him just beyond the midway point and was clocked at 55:34 to go one-up in their personal-but-friendly feud. Each had defeated the other twice this winter in races in Europe.

Third place went to Harold Bjerke of Denver, who placed second a year ago. He was two minutes behind Elliott in the field of 37 starters. Highest finish by any Dartmouth entrant was a sixth-place by Brian Beattie, but Dick Durrance finished ninth and Sel Hannah was 14th to give their university the title on a point basis.

Gallagher is United States cross-country champion. He and Elliott were on the last Olympic team and are members of the nation's Nordic team.

Beattie took the lead for the skimeister title, which will go to the outstanding performer in the meet's four events. Downhill race is scheduled for Saturday morning. Jumping will close the program Saturday afternoon.

Pete Karns of Utah and Jim Barrows of Colorado, who placed 11th and 19th, respectively, in the cross-country, follow Beattie in the running for the four-way title.

There is one big difference, however. All the racing at Pikes Peak Meadows, as with any horse track, is during daylight hours. A 3 p.m. post time will be in force during the week, with the start scheduled for two hours earlier on Saturdays and holidays.

Are there enough people in the region with free time at this hour of the day to fill those 1,500 seats? I would guess there are, especially after seeing the waiting line to tee off on many golf course any day of the week during the summer months. Wheth-

BETWEEN THE LINES

by Loy Holman

The Snows Came

Until the early part of this week, optimism was filling the nearly finished stalls at Pikes Peak Meadows. Construction was going at a rapid pace, only two days had been lost because of weather, and it looked like horse racing would at last come to southern Colorado.

Then the snows came.

They still aren't throwing in the towel, by a long shot. But that stuff that delights only the skiers has been piling up high around the region, the forecast is for more of the same, and it's even tough just getting around the block in the ole jalopy.

In short, it's a poor time for building.

However, don't count out the Meadows. They have already progressed pretty well and in a month's time considerable can be accomplished. But for those who have reserved opening day for a trip to the track, don't be too surprised if you have to dodge a few painters around the mutual windows or that the entire layout is not yet as plush as you might have expected.

The summer is still ahead, and finishing touches probably will be applied throughout the season.

So far the stable barns are all but complete (they actually were nearly finished last year before officials decided to delay the opening a year), the track has been graded and a deep surface of special dirt laid down, the jockeys' dressing quarters are nearly finished with the exception of a little interior work, and the clubhouse-cafeteria has its outer shell and wiring done.

Initial steel work on the first level and the foundation of the grandstand has been erected, and even more would be accomplished along this line if they hadn't been forced to wait on delivery on the steel beams. That work goes up fast once the groundwork is in and there should be no sweat on completion of the stands if the weather breaks.

Still left is finish work on all the buildings, roads in and out of the area off Interstate 25, installation of the safety rail around the track — and landscaping, of course.

The plant won't be exactly as planned for the first season as officials will work on the assumption that improvements can be made each year, but the Meadows still should be more than adequate for this spring's meeting. Such things as a beautiful infield will have to wait, as will other luxuries that have become synonymous with thoroughbred horse racing.

How will the region react to horse racing?

Well, as unpredictable as Colorado Springs and Pueblo have been in the past toward supporting anything, we'll just have to wait and see.

There were many of the same doubts circulating when parimutual wagering first came to the state and greyhound tracks were opened. Since that time, attendance and receipts have dispelled these doubts.

There is one big difference, however. All the racing at Pikes Peak Meadows, as with any horse track, is during daylight hours. A 3 p.m. post time will be in force during the week, with the start scheduled for two hours earlier on Saturdays and holidays.

Are there enough people in the region with free time at this hour of the day to fill those 1,500 seats? I would guess there are, especially after seeing the waiting line to tee off on many golf course any day of the week during the summer months. Whether they will show at the Meadows is another matter.

The Midway Enterprises people have a big job in selling their product to prospective race fans. And it won't be enough to quote a few figures about horse racing being the biggest spectator sport in the country — which it is. They will have to make their park attractive enough to be a drawing card, and this will include quality races as well as first class facilities.

There are just too many other things to do in this region, especially in the early summer, to expect the people to clamor at their gateway. Sure, the betting will be the big attraction, but in the middle of the afternoon it's gonna be tough to get 'em down there unless it's a first class event.

It's right at 20 miles from the city limits, either from the Springs or Pueblo, and about a half-hour's drive. For those who want to look for themselves at the progress, the track is just to the west of the Hanover interchange on Highway 85-87.

Racing starts May 7 and runs through June 30, with Sundays and Mondays excepted.

Along these same lines, it was noted that at Sunland Park just outside El Paso, Tex., on the New Mexico side of the border, they're testing a new training method for horses. The exercise boys are trading their boots and chaps for rubber wet suits and instead of heading for the oval they're taking a swim at the infield lake.

It's called Aquaptherapy.

The reasoning is that a horse can take a swim and get the same workout as running, as far as developing tremendous lung power and using all the muscles needed in an actual race — but without the wear and tear on the legs. In addition, the high salt content of this particular lake seems to soothe the muscles and the animals love it, according to Sunland officials.

They say that two minutes of swimming is worth a two-mile gallop for the horse — without the strain on the underpinnings.

This is also said to be popular at Del Mar in California, where the horses are walked to the beach of the Pacific and delight in the breakers.

If this keeps growing, as some believe, we may have a new event on the sports calendar. The nags could be timed for 50 yards or so, but I doubt they'll ever be making very good time at the backstroke or medley relay.

Jackson Tourney Pro-Am Winners

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Clifford Ann Creed, a tiny onetime school teacher, led her male amateur partners to victory in Thursday's pro-am tuneup for the $8,500 Jackson Women's Invitational golf tourney.

The 54-hole tourney gets underway Friday on the Colonial Country Club layout.

Miss Creed, from Alexandria, La., and her partners had a low ball net of 59. Finishing second with a 60 was the team headed by pro Mary Mills of Ocean Springs, Miss.

Hassman was more spectacular en route to the quarterfinals. He scored pins against Kurt Kuppinger of Syracuse in the opening round and Oregon's Robert Mitchell in the second round.

Favored Oklahoma State Grapplers See Star Forced Out With Injury

By WARD MARCHANT
Associated Press Sports Writer

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — The 1965 National Collegiate wrestling championships could have been decided Thursday night after defending title Oklahoma State — pre-tourney favorite — lost one of its key men with an apparent concussion.

Bob Douglas, 147-pound runner-up two years ago, was favored to win his weight division, but an accidental kick in the head in the first round Thursday by Dan Divito of Southern Illinois put Douglas out of action.

Douglas won the match, but shortly after that was taken to a Cheyenne Hospital for observation by neurologists there.

He was the only Oklahoma State wrestler who didn't move into today's quarterfinals. His loss gave Iowa State, the team most experts believed would give the Cowboys the most trouble, an opportunity to pull an upset by advancing its complete team-map team into the quarterfinals.

At the end of the two preliminary rounds, the Cyclones had scored 19 points to take a slight advantage over Oklahoma State with 17.

The Sooners of Oklahoma and another pre-tourney contender, Michigan, were tied for third with 13 points each, while way back on the list were Lehigh, seven; Brigham Young, Penn State and Arizona State, six each; Lock Haven, Army, Wisconsin and Navy, five each; Maryland, Minnesota and Oregon State, each with four.

The three defending champions, 130-pound Yojiro Uetake of Oklahoma State, Gordon Hassman of Iowa State at 157 and 137-pound Mike Sager of Oklahoma, all walked through the first two rounds.

Uetake, one of the Cowboys' two Japanese imports, knocked off George Seheffer of Utah and Don Romine of Colorado State College by decisions, as did Sager over Joe Ganz of Michigan State and Raphael Gonshorowski of Morehead State.

Hassman was more spectacular en route to the quarterfinals. He scored pins against Kurt Kuppinger of Syracuse in the opening round and Oregon's Robert Mitchell in the second round.

Height Meets Speed in East-West

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — That time-worn sports drama, Finesse vs. Force, is the attraction again here Saturday, with an all-new all-star cast.

The occasion is the renewal of the East-West College All-Star basketball game with coaches Duggie Julian of Dartmouth handling the West and Joe Lapchick of St. John's directing the East.

Julian has a lot of guards and I've got a lot of big men," Lapchick says. "He'll have to go with the fast game and he probably will."

Julian is impressed with his opponents' size. "Boy, they're big! They have the size and the scorers. We just hope we can make it up with ball-handling and speed."

The statistics make the East a slight favorite. All-America Rick Barry, 67, led the nation in scoring (37.4 points a game), and the East also has All-America Fred Hetzel, 68, of Davidson (26.5) and 65 Billy Cunningham of North Carolina (25.9).

Julian's top scorer is Flynn Robinson of Wyoming (27.0), but All-America Gail Goodrich of UCLA (23.2) and 1964 All-America Dave Stallworth of Wichita (25.0) also pack the scoring punch.

Over-all the East averages 6-foot-6½ to the West's 6-4½, and has the scoring edge at 22.3 per player per game to the West's 19.6.

Lapchick won't name his starting line-up yet, but Julian says he might go with Goodrich and Jim Jarvis (Oregon State, 21.1) at guards, Stallworth and Keith Erickson (UCLA, 17.7) at forwards, and Ollie Johnson (San Francisco, 21.6) at center.

Lapchick, who will be coaching his final college game after leading St. John's to the NIT crown last week, doesn't want the favorite's role.

"You can't say we're going to get all the rebounding just because we're big. The West has Johnson, and they tell me he's great. He'll really eat you alive on the boards."

Julian, who has admitted he's the underdog, says "my kids are all thoroughbreds. We'll play to win."

"All these kids are the finest players in America. Heck, it's gonna be interesting just to be a spectator."

Under game rules, all players must see 10 minutes' action in the first half, with free substitution thereafter.

HOW PUNKIN FLOCK PEPPERS
CLAY PIGEONS—Punkin Flock looks down the barrel of her shot gun with the same eye that has made her one of the top women trapshooters in the nation. She holds the Overall National Women's Championship of American Trapshooting and other high trapshooting awards. (AP Wirephoto)

Women's Shooting Champ Started Her Career Young

By KELLY SMITH

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Punkin Flock eloped on a hunting trip when she was 15, picked up her new husband's gun and hasn't put it down since.

Now, as one of the country's top women trapshooters, she has enough sterling for 500 brides and can bag a quail in seconds.

Punkin doesn't look like she could lift a big frying pan, much less swing 12-gauge shotguns, weighing upwards of eight pounds, in competition.

Auburn-haired and blue-eyed, this 5-foot-1½ champ shimmies into size 10 ball gowns as easily as she dons cowboy boots and hat to win national championships.

In her last 25 meets, she hasn't lost a title. She's current holder of the Overall National Women's Championship of American Trapshooting and the All-Around National Women's Championship, both won last August at Vandalia, Ohio. Her titles would take pages to enumerate.

"I shoot more for Carl than myself," she says. Her handsome husband, 16 years her senior, an avid hunter and businessman, took his bride in hand some 20 years ago.

"He told me, 'You have everything it takes to be a champion. You have the ability, the desire, the coordination and the strength — now let's see you do it.'"

Carl made her practice, offered encouragement and kindled the interest in hunting and winning that's made Punkin an expert.

"The hardest, most difficult part of competition, is pressure. Competition is more desire than anything else. It takes plain guts and steady nerves."

"It's just like golf. There's no explanation for how well you do some days and how badly others. Some days I feel good, sleep good and have three left feet. When I get too tense, I just try to remember to wiggle my toes."

Men are more prominent in shooting than women and Punkin thinks this is because "men are stronger, mentally and physically. Then too, there's more men competing."

Her name and pictures often appear in national sports magazines.

"Little old men who shoot write me. And children write me. They ask questions or write

Smith Trying for American First in Grand National

By JOHN FARROW

LONDON (AP) — "You've got to watch those horses running wild," commented American amateur jockey Tommy Smith.

He was talking about the 124th running of the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree on Saturday — a race that will wind up with about 50 horses.

Smith is 27, comes from little Middleburg, Va. and is trying to make history for the United States in what may be the last Grand National at Aintree.

He's riding an American-bred horse called Jay Trump owned by Mrs. Mary Stephenson of Cincinnati — and if he wins then it will be the first time such a thing has happened.

'Bantams' Highlight AAU Card

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The biggest isn't always the best in boxing.

The biggest match on the opening card of the National AAU boxing championships Thursday, for instance, pitted 231 pound Alonzo Johnson of New York City against 194-pound Fleming Mosely of Cleveland.

But the day's best fight was a toe-to-toe slugfest by a pair of 112-pounders, Sam Goss of Trenton, N.J., and Ray Hall of Wilkes Barre, Pa.

Mosely won a decision. So did Goss — but Goss and Hall both won crowd ovations.

Another pair of 112-pounders, Benny Gerolaga of Stockton, Calif., and Harvey Wilson of Columbus, Ohio, got credit for the day's only knockouts.

Another 112-pounder, Richard Woodson of Toledo, and three other fighters — 125-pound Robert Green of Lorton, Va., 132-pound Alfred Massey of Philadelphia and 147-pound Ronnie White of Pittsburgh — flattened their foes so convincingly that the count was stopped, leaving them with only technical knockouts.

Action tonight moves into the semifinals in all 10 weight classes, following afternoon fights in quarter-finals from 165 pounds up.

Gerolaga, 19, needed only 38 seconds to gain the national semifinals for the third straight year, flooring William Garrett of Chicago with a right. Green took only 55 seconds to dispense with John Rushing of Cincinnati in his first try for a national title.

Gerolaga and Woodson clash tonight in a semifinal highlight. Several amateur veterans were among first-day winners.

George Colon of New York City, a former 119-pound AAU champ, won his 104th bout — against one loss — while Marcus Anderson of Louisville, Ky., winner of the 126-pound Golden Gloves crown last week, gained a decision in his first fight at 139 pounds.

Griffith Entering 11th Crown Fight Against Stable in Garden Twin Bill

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. crown against Jose Torres, the (AP) — Emile Griffith is truly a fighting champion.

The 26-year-old native of the Virgin Islands doesn't have to be warned by any of the boxing bodies to get busy and defend his world welterweight crown.

Dapper Emile, a onetime milliner's helper who wears clothes a half year ahead of the current fashion, is fighting his 11th title scrap next Tuesday against Jose Stable, the No. 1 contender, as the first half of the doubleheader championship card Madison Square Garden.

In the second half, light heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano of Miami risks his came to. He also lost, one and one in three title fights with slick Luis Rodriguez of Cuba.

Nobody has to tell Emile to fight. He has a family of 13 to take care of even though he is a bachelor with an apartment in Weehawken, N.J. He has a long, sleek, expensive convertible to take him to Long Island, where he quarters his family of mother, sisters, brothers, and cousins from his native Virgin Islands.

"They all have problems," said Emile while training at the Concord Hotel for his defense against the streaking Stable, winner of nine straight. "I try to keep them happy but I wish they wouldn't bother me when I'm training so hard for a title fight."

"After all Stable is the No. 1 contender. He is a tough boy and deserves the chance. I must concentrate on him. I am confident I will win but I know I must be in top condition to beat him."

"He'll take care of him good," said co-manager Gil Clancy. "Stable has to come to Emile if he wants the title and that suits us fine. If he does that the second fight is liable to come up early. Emile likes the title and needs it. He has too many mouths to feed."

Principals Deny Feud In NY Camp

By JOE REICHLER

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — All is sweetness and light and peace and prosperity and good comradeship and nobody is mad at anybody inside the three principals in a reported feud among the New York Yankees.

And they're still losing. "All I'm trying to do," said manager Johnny Keane, "is trying to find our best possible outfield combination. I've discussed it with both (Mickey) Mantle and (Tom) Tresh and it's no surprise to me that they've been fully co-operative."

Keane's shift of Mantle and his ailing legs from center to left field was what the feud was supposed to be all about. Reports had it that Whitey Ford had sided with Mantle against the new Yankee manager. All three denied it.

"First I'd heard about it," Whitey said, shrugging it off.

"If he (Keane) wants to find out if I can play left field, what can I do but give it a try?" Mantle asked. "I'd kind of like to find out myself."

Later, just before game time, he was joking about it.

"Hadden't you heard?" Mantle asked. "I'm not playing today. I'm mad at the manager."

He played, and played left field, but still looked slow. A liner dropped in front of him in the first inning that another man might have reached. And Roy McMillan's run-scoring double off the wall in the third might have been handled by a faster man.

In the end, the Yankees dropped their eighth game in nine starts. The New York Mets' ancient Warren Spahn stopped the Yankees on four hits through six innings, striking out three and gaining credit for the 3-2 victory.

Spahn, the 43-year-old lefty acquired from Milwaukee, allowed only one run, a homer by Phil Linz, had a single, drove in a run with a sacrifice fly and hit a home run.

The report of the feud in Thursday's New York World-Telegram and Sun by baseball writer Joe King caused a quick furor, that was calmed just as quickly.

The writer said the 33-year-old Mantle and his friends on the team were disturbed by Keane's move in shifting him from center to left. Tresh moved over from left to center.

"I don't care where I play as long as they let me hit," Mantle said.

Smith, Turner Gain Semis of Caracas Net

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Australia's Margaret Smith and Lesley Turner moved into the semifinals of the Caracas International Tennis Tournament Thursday night.

Miss Smith, the top seed, defeated Holland's Trudy Groenman, 6-2, 6-3, and Miss Turner ousted Heide Schildeknecht of Germany, 7-5, 13-11.

Argentina's Norma Baylon and France's Francoise Durr also gained the semifinals. Miss Baylon eliminated Monique Salfati of France, 6-4, 6-3. Miss Durr downed Elly Krocke of Holland, 6-4, 6-1.

Other results included: Ronald Ranges, Brazil, defeated Nicola Pietrangeli, Italy, 3-6, 6-1, 6-3. Pierre Barthelemy, defeated Ramanathan Krishnan, India, 4-6, 6-4. Women's Doubles: Heidi Schildeknecht, Germany, and Trudy Groenman, Holland, defeated Norma Baylon, Argentina, and Francoise Durr, France, 6-3, 6-4. Margaret Smith and Lesley Turner, Australia, defeated Betty Shaw and Elly Krocke, Holland, 6-1, 6-2.

"TWINS-BRAVES ACTION" — Action started fast Thursday at Tinker Field in the 13th game for the Twins in the Citrus Circuit. Shortstop Zoilo Versalles still has the ball in the forceout at second.

Ageless Spahn Spearheads Amazin' Mets Fourth Win

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Sports Writer Roberto Clemente has malaria, Hank Aaron is recuperating from an ankle operation, and Bill Mazeroski has a broken bone in his right foot.

But there's nothing wrong with Warren Spahn.

Mickey Mantle has some leg trouble, Tim McCarver has a broken finger and Wayne Causey has a shoulder separation.

But there's nothing wrong with Warren Spahn.

Willie McCovey has aching feet, the Philadelphia Phillies have lost their second shortstop in less than a week and Don Zimmer has torn muscles in an elbow.

But there's nothing wrong with Warren Spahn.

Spahn, the ageless wonder of the Amazin' Mets, demonstrated his fitness Thursday with a light workout against the Mets' favorite foes, an outfit called the Yankees from the other side of New York.

The 43-year-old lefty spaced out three walks and four hits and allowed one run in six innings at Fort Lauderdale, Fla. He also stroked a single, drove in a run with a sacrifice fly and hit a homer.

His performance helped the Amazin' run their winning string to four while the troubled Yankees, busily denying published reports of a club rift, now have lost eight of their last nine.

While the old southpaw made a major stride in his projected comeback from a dismal 6-13 season with Milwaukee last season, the dispatches from baseball's spring training camps were liberally sprinkled with reports of injury and ailment among front line players and overshadowed by the Yankee "feud" story.

Hoosiers in NCAA Swim Meet Lead

By RON SPEER

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Indiana's graceful divers and its record-breaking relay team had the Hoosiers off to a strong start in a bid for their first National Collegiate swimming title today.

Defending champion Southern California trailed Indiana 100½ to 75 with 12 events left despite a great performance by the Trojans' Roy Saari.

Bidding for a repeat of his triple triumph last year, Saari powered his way to NCAA and American records in the 500-yard freestyle Thursday night.

But that was not enough to offset Indiana's depth. The Hoosiers scored 37 points in diving and 28 more with the record victory in the 400-yard medley relay.

The Hoosiers, led by a flashy butterfly leg performance by Fred Schmidt, were timed in 3:30.7, a collegiate and American record.

Even more impressive was the margin of victory scored by diver Ken Sitzberger, who dethroned Indiana teammate Rick Gilbert as the one-meter champion.

Sitzberger, a 1964 Olympic winner and beaten by Gilbert in the recent Big Ten meet, scored 551.25 points nearly 41 more than Gilbert, the runner-up.

Indiana's Rick Early was fifth and Dick Morse 11th in the diving in the strongest team showing in any of Thursday's five final events.

Southern California's team hopes sagged when Michigan sophomore Carl Robie took the 400-yard individual medley in 4:16.6. That was two-tenths of a second slower than the record time posted by the Trojans' Rich McGeagh a year ago. McGeagh passed up the event this year and swam in the 50-yard freestyle, where he finished sixth.

Steve Clark of Yale, who set the 50-yard freestyle record of 20.9 seconds in the 1964 preliminaries and then was beaten in the finals, avenged the loss with 12 seconds.

Saari, a brawny junior just rounding into form, won the 500-yard freestyle handily in 4:3.6. That clocking shattered his 1964 collegiate mark of 4:45.8, and also bettered the American standard of 4:45.5.

The American mark was set a year ago by Don Schollander, who won four gold medals at the Olympic Games. Schollander now is a freshman at Yale and not eligible for this meet.

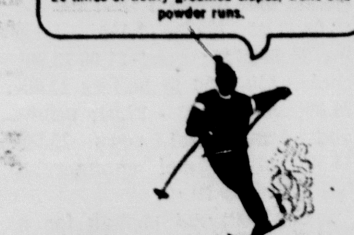

Sno-Jets to Ski At Crested Butte

Members of the Sno-Jet ski club are scheduled to leave at 6:30 p.m. today for a weekend trip to Crested Butte. Reports from Crested Butte list 108 inches of base snow and new snow falling regularly, and excellent skiing is expected. The bus trip will return on Sunday.

The club holds its regular meetings each Thursday throughout the ski season, at the Patty Jewett Golf Course clubhouse. Plans for a spring trip to Winter Park and the annual Pikes Peak outing will be discussed at the next meeting.

There are about 18 million hunters in America.

Mountaineers Save Kennedy From Crevasse

By DALE NELSON

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) —

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and two mountaineers, who kept him from plunging into a crevasse near the summit of Mt. Kennedy, say the climb was tougher than they expected.

James W. Whittaker, Seattle, and Barry Prather, Ellensburg, Wash., veterans of the 1963 American Mt. Everest expedition, said the previously unclimbed mountain was not an easy peak, and expressed admiration for the stamina of the New York senator.

"He climbed as if he were born to it," said Whittaker. "He's a pretty rugged fellow," echoed Prather.

Kennedy said he slipped up to his armpits into a crevasse about 800 feet below the summit of the nearly 14,000-foot mountain named by the Canadian government for his brother, the late President John F. Kennedy.

The senator, making his first climb, was roped between Whittaker and Prather when the snow crust gave way under his feet and he tumbled into the crevasse. Whittaker said he anchored himself with an ice axe and Kennedy pulled himself out of the huge crack by digging his crampons into its sides.

Whittaker said the crevasse curved so he couldn't see how deep it was but some in the area go as far down as 300 feet.

"I'd glad I did it, and I'm glad it's over," Kennedy said after the trio returned here from Whitehorse, Yukon Territory, 150 miles east of the glacial peak.

He brought back the flag he had carried with him to his rendezvous with a memory about the mountain.

"They told me it would have disappeared in another 48 hours if I had left it there," Kennedy said.

He had planted the flag, made for the Kennedys in Ireland and bearing the family crest of three yellow helmets on a black field, at the summit as a memorial to his brother.

Kennedy said he hadn't decided what to do with the president's personal crest, a raised fist clenching four spears and flanked by green laurel wreaths, except that "it will be in the family."

The eight who climbed to the summit left Tuesday from an 8,500-foot base camp and spent the night at a forward camp about 3,000 feet higher. The ascent was completed in 4 1/2 hours Wednesday.

Before leaving Whitehorse, Kennedy said: "I thought it was a wonderful looking mountain. It is marvelous looking from a distance but tremendously impressive at the top. I am grateful to the Canadian government for naming it for President Kennedy. I was grateful before I climbed it, but I am even more grateful now."

Whittaker and Prather accompanied Kennedy today on a flight to New York where the senator said they would hop a shuttle flight for Washington.

The two climbers were reported to have business with the National Geographic Society, sponsor of the expedition which Kennedy had asked to join.

The Democratic senator said he had also invited them, as well as the other climbers to visit his Long Island home.

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market headed irregularly lower early this afternoon in slack trading.

Losses of key stocks went from fractions to a point or more, but most movements were fractional and a good many issues were unchanged.

The trend was mildly lower among autos, steels, electrical equipments, farm implements, electronics and drugs. Rails and utilities were fairly steady.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 2 at 335.8 with industrials off .6, rails up .1 and utilities unchanged.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 1.82 at 896.52.

All Big Three motors took fractional losses. U.S. Steel and Bethlehem also were off a little but other major steelmakers held about unchanged.

Eastern Air Lines, down more than a point, and KLM, off a fraction, still underwent profit taking.

IBM lost 3, Xerox 2 and Polaroid 1.

Zenith lost nearly 2 and Control Data more than 2.

The averages were weakened by General Electric's loss of more than 2 points.

Kennecott rose more than a point and International Nickel nearly a point.

Prices were mixed in active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds held about unchanged.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — The grain futures market maintained generally firm to strong prices most of the time today on the Board of Trade.

Old crop soybeans, by far the most active contracts on the exchange, moved up more than three cents a bushel without drawing more than light selling by early afternoon.

The feed grains were firm. Carlot receipts were estimated at: wheat 9 cars, corn 224, oats 5, rye none, barley 7, soybeans none.

Money Madness

We have a copy of a magazine entitled "Mexico" which is printed in that country in English, mostly for prospective tourists. In the February issue there is a panel by a celebrated Mexican cartoonist named Abel Quezada, which lampoons Uncle Sam's world-wide lending operations. The title is I. O. U.

He says, "Taken together, all the countries in the world owe the United States 207 trillion, 500 billion pesos. Let's look at how and when each of the debtor continents can pay."

Then, in six drawings, he shows a bag of money, the biggest one for Europe, the next biggest for Oceania, the next for Asia, a little smaller one for Africa and a tiny piggy-bank for Latin America.

Under Europe he says, "At the rate of one million pesos a day Europe will take 568 years to pay off."

"Oceania (translated as what the geographers say it is), at 100 thousand pesos a day, will take 5,648 years to repay."

"Asia, at the rate of ten thousand pesos a day, will have finished paying within 56,849 years."

"Africa, at a thousand pesos a day, will pay up in 568,498 years."

"And Latin America, at the rate of 100 pesos a day, will take 5,684,931 years to meet its debt."

In the final panel he says, "Poor United States. But it's their own fault for running around lending all over the place."

And we expect our debtors are enjoying some real hearty laughs at our sorry plight. And, as the cartoonist says, it is our own fault. We are happy to learn that somebody can find something humorous about it. It is very unfunny to us. And we doubt very much if any of the continents will settle their debts to us in the short time he allotted to them. It has been quite some time since World War One and they haven't even got started on that one yet.

And another thing, we are still lending them money as well as giving it to them in great gobs. We are certainly pouring money into all those places much faster than he has them paying it back, if they were doing so. But it's only money and if it brings a little amusement into their otherwise drab and mundane lives, it is probably worth it — to them.

Extremists Cry in Vain

All Americans of dark hue are understandably interested in the well-publicized activities of the extremists among them who claim to speak in their name and have the solutions to their problems.

That, fortunately, is as far as it goes.

The quiet funeral of slain

The Non-Political Voter

Before the next election for president, you can anticipate that moves will be made to compel the American citizen to vote. At the last election, while a record number flocked to the polls, the percentage of those who did not vote increased. This fact is a major item of concern to all those who believe that government solves the problems of men.

Approximately 40 per cent of those who are eligible, or who could be eligible, didn't participate in the November popularity contest. And that means that the number of persons who did not vote at all combined with those who actively opposed Mr. Johnson contained the majority. Thus, more people expressed a preference out of harmony with administration policies than those who expressed a preference for them.

Now, that is a devastating realization in a nation which preaches that majorities are correct.

There are many reasons why a person may decide not to vote at a given election. Obviously, disinterest and apathy play a leading role. But since it would be impossible to see that everyone was equally informed about the choices offered, an election in which all were compelled to express a preference would be a gross violation of the concept of freedom and individual choice.

If a man frankly and honestly does not want to participate in choosing another to have power over him, what merit could be gained by forcing him? If it is to be presumed that the voter is wise, how can compulsory voting be countenanced when many a voter disqualifies himself on the basis that he is not wise enough to make so fatal and far-reaching a decision?

If we consider the matter of personal responsibility, another approach to the question appears. In the famous Nuremberg trials in Germany, it was held that those who had assisted in electing Adolf Hitler were in some measure responsible for what transpired in Germany following his rise to power.

If this proposition is to be sustained, then each person who votes for the winning candidate is, to some degree, responsible for the actions taken by that candidate when he assumes office. In view of the actions taken by any and all men in power, there are a number of thoughtful people who do not wish to take even this much responsibility for what may happen to the nation or to the world, at the hands of a political master chosen in part by themselves.

This idea is actually being encouraged whenever we hear it said that the voter is the government. If the voter is the government and is, to the degree that he participates, responsible for the tax measures and the drafting and the regulations that proceed from the political structure, then each person who participates on the winning slate is involved.

Actually, the voter is not the government. But, by voting with the winning majority, he does assume some responsibility for the actions of his champion. For the whole concept of responsibility has it that each person is incontestably responsible for all his actions, whether taken separately or taken in company with others.

One of the purposes of mass participation in elections is to convince the winner that the electorate stands back of him. Believing that a substantial portion of the citizenry will back him in whatever he does, the victor is prone to wear the purple and to become convinced that he is justified in whatever way he proceeds. Government is merely an expediency.

Now we happen to be among those who do not believe that political solutions really solve problems. We will concede that problems are altered by government participation. But to shift a burden or to introduce a new problem in place of an old one, solves nothing.

The progress we have made has almost entirely been the product of men outside the governmental arena. In the market place, we do not have to wait for political elections.

We can and we do vote every day, expressing our preferences by favoring or withholding our support for any good or service.

We are not impressed with talk of compelling everyone to vote in political contests. Voting in the market place is far more fair and infinitely more decisive.

OUR JOINT CHIEFS

To the Editor:

I bet you don't know their names, so I will tell you, because I just learned them myself. Chairman, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, Army, Gen. Harold K. Johnson (Army), Admiral David L. McDonald, Gen. John P. McConnell (Air Force) and General Wallace M. Greene

(Marine Corps.) These men have been through the years of training by the military schools of our country, and have had many years of experience in actual warfare. They are equipped to lead our country to successful action in any circumstances that may arise.

In this Viet Nam war that we are waging with such doubtful results, we find that these men, trained and competent as they are, are scarcely spoken of, in reference to this conflict. Their names are seldom mentioned in the papers. Their opinions are not open to the public. They are not allowed to conduct this war, for which they have been trained for years. What do we find? Our rulers have turned the job of winning this Viet Nam war over to three men of little or no experience in military affairs. They are Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, and White House adviser McGeorge Bundy. President Johnson could scarcely have chosen three men, less apt to win the war, for the following reasons.

McNamara has been reducing our fighting power for several years, and has acted as though he thought we would never have another war. The only way we can keep out of war is to be prepared to win against any attack that can be made against us. He has stopped the manufacture of new bombers to replace the many bombers he has destroyed. What a man to expect to win a war.

Dean Rusk is soft on the Communists who are helping North Viet Nam to fight against us and South Viet Nam, furnishing them supplies of all kinds. He is the main man in the Opteka case, and got rid of him because Opteka tried to rid the State Department of suspicious characters that were being hired. Rusk and his State Department should be investigated before letting him have anything to do about winning any war.

McGeorge Bundy, President's adviser, is as soft on Communists and the U.N. as Dean Rusk is. None of the three have any military experience to speak of, and so should not be allowed to fill places that should be occupied by the five military men that I mentioned in the beginning of this article. They have been in battle themselves and know what has to be done in order to win.

If it was not so serious, it would be ludicrous to think of doing such a thing. We have spent about a million dollars to equip these officers with the knowledge and experience that is necessary to handle huge numbers of soldiers, and plan to win, and then put them in the background and put these secretaries in charge of winning the war.

It is almost as silly as the war on poverty, when they put a large bunch of men to work at salaries of $15,000 to $30,000 to win the war for folks who have no incomes at all. They will win that war by keeping all the profits.

THINK IT OVER

To the Editor:

Think this one over:

The Bureau of the Budget is established and operated with the duty of managing the country's money efficiently, and reducing costs.

Costs of the Bureau have risen 47 per cent in the last five years.

Bureau personnel (at your expense and mine) have increased 61 per cent.

The national debt has increased, increases faster every day, and nobody will commit himself how much in either case.

This is a budget? They say the proof of the pudding is in the eating; neighbors, there is still a chance your Congressman can change the taste of this one if you write to him pronto and tell him what you want.

WEED 'EM OUT

To the Editor:

Any veteran of the Viet Nam fighting can tell you, if you fail to weed out the Communists from your midst, before the shooting starts, every innocent person suffers and many suffer death and worse.

There is a lesson here for us Americans, in the United States, if we will but heed it in time.

U.S. Adopting Exchange Control

By OSCAR COOLEY

It is amazing how isolationist our Washington internationalists are becoming. Now they are telling Americans that we cannot travel abroad. "See America first." Spend your dollars here, not in foreign countries. Wonder how our foreign brethren like this.

This is, of course, to prevent dollars from being spent abroad unbalancing our payments more and causing foreigners to take more of our gold. For the same reason, President Johnson has asked Congress to reduce the maximum amount of foreign goods an American tourist can bring back duty-free. The limit is now $100, having been cut back from $500 a few years ago.

Step by step, we are adopting "exchange control," the very practice for which we have criticized foreign countries for 30 years. Complete exchange control will be here when Washington sets up a new bureau — let's call it Office of Exchange Control — through which all our international payments will have to be channeled. The consent of the bureau will have to be given before any payment, either incoming or outgoing, can be made. Thus, the right to make out - payments, for imported goods, travel, etc., will simply be denied when there are insufficient in - payments to equal them. In short, the payments will be balanced by force. Hitler was a master at this sort of thing, but it has no place in free America.

A nation's international payments balance automatically when the foreign exchange rates are set free to fluctuate according to supply and demand, as described last week in this space.

But even more important, free exchange rates foster free trade. They encourage each nation to make the most of its resources, producing what it can produce best and exchanging freely with other nations. Why this is so is well stated by Milton Friedman in his book,

"Capitalism and Freedom" (U. of Chicago Press). Assume, he says on page 2, that when the exchange rate between Japan and the United States is abnormally high, say 1000 yen to the dollar the Japanese can make and sell us anything you can name more cheaply than we could make and sell it to them. Hence, we would buy freely of them and all kinds of goods would flow from Japan to the U.S.

Now what will their exporters do with the dollars we pay them for the goods? Normally, they would sell them to Japanese banks, and the banks would resell them to Japanese importers and others who want to make payments in the U.S.

But no importers would buy U.S. dollars for 1000 yen each, because that is an abnormally high price and they could not buy as much American goods for a dollar as they could buy Japanese goods for 1000 yen. They would buy at home rather than from abroad.

And the Japanese bankers, knowing this, would not pay the Japanese exporters 1000 yen per dollar, but something less, that is, whatever they have found by experience they can resell the dollars to the importers for, let us say 500 yen per dollar. At this rate, a Japanese product priced at 1000 yen in Japan would have to bring $2, not $1, in the United States. (For simplicity I am ignoring transportation cost.) Thus it would be twice as expensive to Americans as before. The Japanese advantage has been cut in half.

Further, the American disadvantage in selling to Japan has now been cut in half, because at the 500 - yen rate the Japanese importer can buy his dollars half as expensively as before, and hence can buy each dollar's worth of American goods at half the previous cost. So, to just what level will the exchange rate move? It will move to the level at which the exporters can sell all the dollars they get from exporting goods to Americans to the importers who want to buy goods from Americans; that is, to the level which clears the market.

No matter how much cheap labor and other resources the Japanese producers use and how efficient they are, the movement of goods will not be all one way — Japan to the U.S. Goods will move both ways — Japan to U.S. and U.S. to Japan — but in order for this to be true the trade must be on such terms that the Japanese can spend dollars to advantage in the U.S. and Americans can spend yen to advantage in Japan.

This means, in effect, that the Japanese will produce and ship to the United States the things they can produce MOST efficiently, and we will produce and ship to Japan the things we can produce MOST efficiently. Our labor will employ itself at doing the things it can do most efficiently; Japanese workers will receive the very highest wages they are capable of earning. What more can they ask!

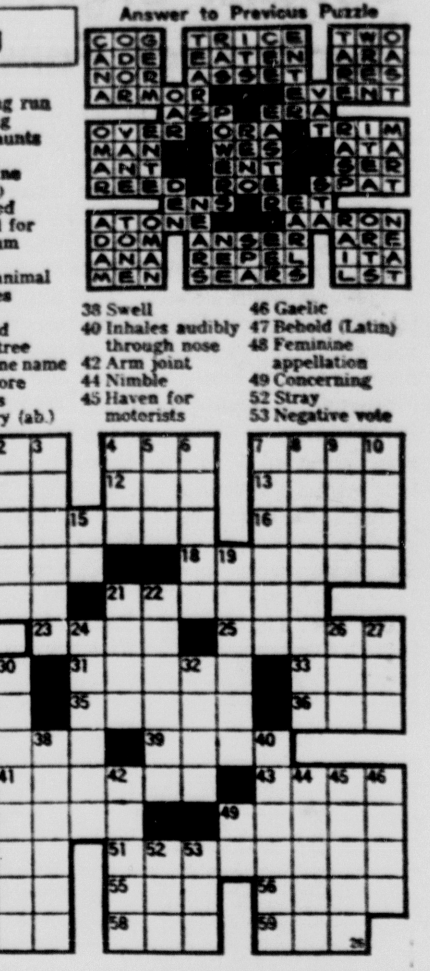

Only under free trade and free exchange rates will this come about. Thus, if the world economy is to become as productive as possible, two actions must be taken by all nations: (1) adopt free exchange rates, and (2) repeal all tariffs and other trade barriers.

The Local Scene

Never a Dull Moment

By RUFUS L. PORTER

Now, a real newspaperman wouldn't be apt to tell all about the business. But being only a temporary member of the "Fourth Estate," I do not feel bound by the reticence usual between members of the press and the general public.

Reporters, for instance, go around all day gathering news, interviewing people, prying into public and private affairs, snooping, with their news-noses to the ground, attending meetings and conferences, freelancing whenever possible, pumping the unsuspecting, listening to speeches, or sleeping through them and flattering the speaker afterwards by asking for a copy so he can make an accurate report. "I wouldn't want to misquote you," he says. "And I can't read my own notes."

And if a reporter hears a dog yelp, he hurries to the scene just on the chance a man might have bit it, then he'd really have a piece of news, the classic all reporters are always hoping for.

This is not to belittle reporters. They really work hard — if they don't, they don't last long in the business and weren't really cut out for it in the first place.

The reporters "dig up the dirt," and believe me, they are no happier than the rest of us because there is more "dirt" — crime, riots, war, accidents, inhumanity, double dealing and political chicanery — than there is "good" news. But the editor often gets his ears burned by subscribers because the reporters do not bring in more of the cheerful news and play down the "morbid stuff."

The reporter brings in his copy, the news editor passes on it and it is turned over to the boys and girls in the "composing room" where it is "punched on tape" and then the tape is run through the marvelous automatic linotype machines, that seem to be as good at making errors as the reporters and the tape punchers and the proofreaders. The element of human error is probably more in evidence in newspaper work than in any other line of endeavor. Well, perhaps this isn't quite true, and I wouldn't want to malign such a fine group of workers that grace the payroll of the Gazette Telegraph. Let us say that their final errors, the ones that even the proofreaders miss, have a greater chance of being discovered than the mistakes made in any other trade or business. They have no way of "covering up" their mistakes, once they're on the market.

With 35,000 subscribers reading your daily output, you have 35,000 critics to correct you on your grammar, your punctuation and your spelling. And sometimes it seems as though some of them just read the paper to find the mistakes so they can call up and beat the editor's ears off. The first question they invariably ask is, "What have you got reading proof over there?" Not "Who?"

The editor says, "Why, people, of course, and they do the best they can."

"I've got a Siamese cat that can proof read better than that," they'll say. Or else it will be a French poodle or a mynah bird or even a monkey. Sometimes it's a three months old grandchild.

Some will ask, "Haven't you got ANYBODY on the paper that studied English grammar?" There was a blaring breach of grammar in the paper tonight in that article about — on page — paragraph — anybody but a moron would have caught it."

Every once in awhile somebody will offer to come over and show us how to proof read. "Blindfolded, I could beat the ones you've got." Sometimes they are taken up and offered a job. And sometimes they take it, but never for long. They quickly learn that proofreading is a tedious, monotonous and irksome job. They come here wondering that so many errors can get by the readers, and they leave marveling that the readers catch so many of them.

A good proofreader is an experienced one, that's for sure. But the only way they can gain experience is to proofread. One subscriber thought, if we paid enough wages, we could get college graduates to read proof. "Somebody who knows something about grammar." But there haven't been any yet with PhDs or Masters degrees, and we certainly wouldn't want to hire those with just plain BS degrees, we've tried those.

In proofreading, you have to watch yourself or you will get engrossed in the story and miss the mistakes. Or you may read too fast, or too slow. A fast reader goes along pretty well for a few minutes, then the lines get all blurry and he has to go back over them. A slow reader never gets through and his eyes get tired and he misses the errors.

Proofreading is like climbing a mountain, a steady pace that you know from experience you can keep up all day is always better than going in spurts and jumps and starts and stops. We have a couple of good crews of proofreaders and they do very well at the job. If you don't believe it, come over and try it sometime. Sure they miss a once in awhile. But sometimes they're so funny that you get a good howl out of them, a real belly laugh. How do you know they didn't miss that one on purpose just for your amusement?

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

DON FULGHUM, 2010 W. 10th Ave., "I think so... of course the situation is changed, but when the chips are down, we can do okay. Maybe I'm a bit biased by the inborn American traditions... I hate to think that we couldn't take it."

FRAN JACKSON, 918 Del Monte, "Sure... I think we can take it even better than our ancestors... we've a better education, we've far more experience with history and we have learned from past mistakes and situations. We can take it allright."

Writes

Quite often we hear speakers, even very good speakers, call for an upsurge of "old-fashioned patriotism" among the American people. These speakers mean well, but it is to be wondered if they are really serving any constructive purpose when they accept the theory that patriotism is old-fashioned.

So long as America remains a free nation, patriotism will never be out of style. There are some who try to make patriotism seem outdated and just a little bit quaint. A willing prospect for Secretary of State believes it is good policy for him to criticize "flag-waving, professional patriots." He may find his calls for co-existence falling flat.

Anti-patriots concentrate their energies on the youth of America. Their wily know-how tells them that the classrooms of the nation are an important battlefield in their continuing effort to eliminate freedom. They have made use of youth before, understand them and make their conquest one of their primary goals.

If our schools turn out "educated" boys and girls who are economic and constitutional illiterates, they are not doing what the American people need and have a right to expect. If youth devotes more time preparing for United Nations Week than for Constitution Week, they will regard patriotism as "old-fashioned."

Youth must acquire a sense of duty in order to serve well as America's leaders of tomorrow. They should be supported and encouraged in reverence to our flag and the patriotism for which it is a symbol. H.L.H.

CALL THE SHOT
LOUISVILLE (AP) - The new agent in charge of the FBI office in Louisville, Bernard C. Brown, proved something of a prophet.

A newsman called to ask when Brown would have time for an interview.

"Better right now; never know when I'll be called out on a bank robbery," said Brown. Four hours later he was busy investigating a bank stickup.

The 80,000 Navajos living in Arizona, New Mexico and Utah outnumber their ancestors found by Spanish explorers four centuries ago.

AEC Member Hopes Testing Is Ended

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Dr. Mary I. Bunting, a member of the Atomic Energy Commission, said Thursday she hoped nuclear testing was at an end.
"I certainly hope no country resumes any appreciable atmospheric testing," she said in answer to a question from a student, asked during Woman's Day activities at Baylor University.

THATCH ...

your lawn's worst enemy!

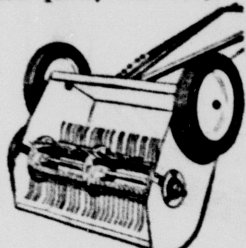

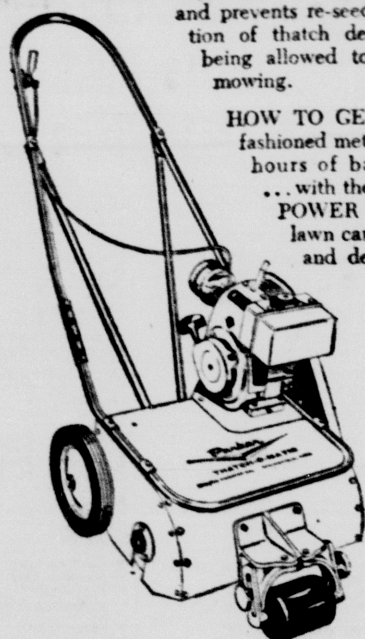

Does your lawn have an ugly brown look? Are dead grass clippings making your lawn unsightly—depriving it of moisture, food and air?

YOUR TROUBLE IS THATCH!

Newest and worst enemy to a healthy, green lawn.

WHAT IS THATCH! Thatch is matted dead grass, imbedded in the turf, which seals water, air, fertilizer from the soil and prevents re-seeding. The heaviest accumulation of thatch develops from grass clippings being allowed to remain on the lawn after mowing.

HOW TO GET RID OF THATCH—Old fashioned methods called for a sturdy rake, hours of back-breaking effort. NOW ... with the Parker THATCH-O-MATIC POWER RAKE ... IT'S EASY. Your lawn can be freed of choking matting, and dethatched quickly and easily.

The THATCH-O-MATIC, with 104 self-cleaning, flexible steel tines, mechanically lifts thatch and imbedded debris, without damage to the living grass.

HONEYMOON ENDS

NEW YORK (AP) — Henry
Ford II, 47, president of the Ford Motor Co., has returned from a 32-day honeymoon in Europe with his second wife,
Italian-born Maria Cristina Vellore Austin Ford, 38.

Arriving Wednesday from Rome, they posed for photographers but declined to be interviewed.

As they waited for their limousine, a newsman said: "Detroit is anxious to know when you will arrive there."

Ford smiled, then said: "Tell them it's none of their damned business."

RANGOON — Burma plans to import raw paper pulp.

8-C—Gazette Telegraph Colorado Springs, Colo. Friday, March 26, 1965

HELP OF HISTORY

NEW YORK (AP) — A historical approach to Christianity will help achieve reunion between Roman Catholicism and Protestantism, the Rev. Dr. Frederick Grant of Union Theological Seminary, maintains. In a new book, "Rome and Reunion" (Oxford), he also sees the possibility of progress toward unity through a reformed Catholicism concerned not merely with intra-ecclesiastical affairs but with the welfare of mankind.

About 59 per cent of the moon's surface is visible from the earth at various times because of lunar oscillations known as librations. The remaining 41 per cent has never been seen by man, but some of it has been crudely photographed by a passing Soviet space craft.

Russians Will Repeat Old Plans in U.N.

By WILLIAM N. OATIS UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — (AP) — The Soviet Union was expected to repeat its previous demands for changes in the U.N. peacekeeping setup today at the first meeting of the new committee charged with unraveling the deadlocked issue. Soviet Chief delegate Nikolai T. Fedorenko indicated he would tell the special committee on U.N. peacekeeping operations that both authorization and financing of such operations should be subject to the big power veto in the Security Council.

He was expected to add that his government still refuses to pay assessments levied by the General Assembly for the Congo and Middle East operations, but that it is still willing to make a voluntary contribution toward the U.N. financial deficit provided it can decide the amount itself.

The Soviet Union, Canada and Yugoslavia all asked to address the opening meeting of the 33-nation committee headed by General Assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana.

In an apparent preview of what Fedorenko would say, the Soviet delegation distributed the text of a speech the ambassador made Tuesday at Princeton University.

In it he said: —The Middle East and Congo operations both violated the U.N. charter, and the Soviet Union will not pay "the so-called financial arrears" for either.

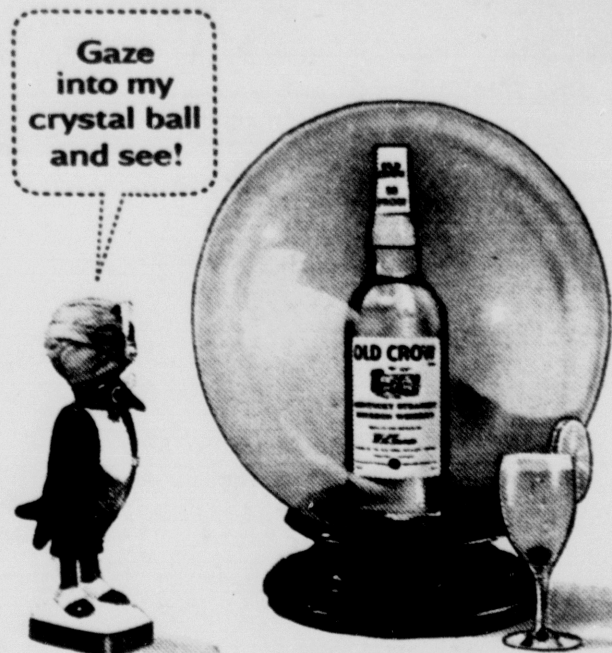

—From last August to December, the United States and other Western powers pressed the United Nations into paying them more than $30 million in bills growing out of those operations. As a result, "the U.N. coffers were essentially emptied" before the assembly met.

—The committee should abide by the U.N. charter and leave peacekeeping to the Security Council, "where all decisions on the establishment, use and financing of U.N. armed forces are taken only by agreement of all permanent members."

INDIAN WIDOWS REMARRY NEW DELHI (AP) — The traditional Hindu taboo on widows remarrying is breaking down in India. A survey of northern villages shows 38.5 per cent of widows threw themselves on their husband's funeral pyre.
